EBOOK: NEW STRUCTURE OF SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT Bruce Joyce,Emily

Calhoun, David Hopkins, 1999-05-16 Self renewing schools where students and staff are involved in ongoing inquiry has long since been an ideal in education However this goal has not proved readily achievable The authors of this book regard this as a challenge which can be confronted positively believing that enough knowledge exists to develop a fresh structure of school improvement and one which is likely to succeed The book draws upon the considerable body of research on successful and unsuccessful school improvement programs to generate a practical strategy for school improvement that can be used by schools school districts and local education authorities and policymakers with a high probability of success The heart of the strategy is an inquiry process centered on the continuous study of student learning and the creation and study of initiatives to enhance student achievement in academic personal and social domains The school as a workplace is altered dramatically with the inclusion of study time for teachers continuous staff development and the organization of a governance structure which includes school staff parents community agencies business partners and local district or education authority personnel This timely and important book is vital reading for anyone with an interest in improving schools and the quality of education today

Barham, 1996 Motivating Writers in Class Bruce Saddler, 2023-04-14 Writing is a very complex process that is difficult to teach learn and research Although many students struggle with writing composing often presents major challenges for students with disabilities One area of written expression that presents particular difficulties for students with disabilities is motivation Motivation is a key aspect of written expression that helps all writers complete difficult composing tasks However students with disabilities may have more negative motivational patterns and may also be less positive about writing and their ability as writers than their normally achieving peers Logically this means that effective writing intervention efforts must not only address how to write but must also articulate methods to increase students motivation to write This book written for teachers scholars and researchers focuses on the essential issue of helping students learn how to want to write Each contributing author presents an important theoretical or pedagogical element of writing motivation for example The historical beginnings of research in this area Conceptual and methodological advances in the field of motivation to write Developmental trajectories of writing motivation in typical and atypical populations The effect of playful writing tasks on the development of writing ability as well as on motivation to write The impact of writing prompts on motivation How reading motivation relates and supports writing motivation This book was originally published as a special issue of Reading and Writing Quarterly
