Reflections On Tanzanias First Multiparty Parliament 1995-2000:

Reflections on the First Multi-party Parliament, 1995-2000 Pius Msekwa, 2000 The first five years of multi party parliamentary democracy in Tanzania was a period of adjusting to a new political system and seeking to create a new political culture The essays in this collection are part of a civic education project designed to create a better understanding of the roles and functioning of parliament in a pluralistic or multi party democracy One of the aims of the project is to provide for the accomodation and tolerance of opposing views and opinions The author is the current Speaker of the National Assembly and has vast experience in parliamentary practice and procedures African Parliaments M. Salih, 2005-12-10 This book offers in depth analysis of parliamentary development set in a historical context informed by Africa s post 1990s democratic resurgence In particular it illustrates how African parliaments are caught between the twin processes of being part of the machinery of government while exercising the function of holding government accountable Reflections on the First

Michaela Collord, 2024-07-16 Through an analysis of the recent political history of Tanzania and Uganda Wealth Power and Authoritarian Institutions offers a novel explanation of why authoritarian parties and legislatures vary in strength and why this variation matters Michaela Collord elaborates a view of authoritarian political institutions as both reflecting and magnifying elite power dynamics While there are many sources of elite power the book centres on material power It outlines how diverse trajectories of state led capitalist development engender differing patterns of wealth accumulation and elite contestation across regimes These differences in turn influence institutional landscapes Where accumulation is more closely controlled by state and party leaders as was true in Tanzania until economic liberalization in the 1980s rival factions remain subdued Ruling parties can then consolidate relatively strong institutional structures and parliament remains marginal Conversely where a class of private wealth accumulators expands as occurred in Tanzania after the 1980s and in Uganda after the National Resistance Movement took power in 1986 rival factions can more easily form simultaneously eroding party institutions and encouraging greater legislative strength Collord uses this analysis to reassess the significance of a stronger legislature She considers its influence on distributive politics both regressive and progressive She also considers its relation to democratization particularly in a context of broader liberalizing reforms The book ultimately encourages a closer examination of how would be democratic institutions interact with an underlying power distribution shaping in whose interests they operate Oxford Studies in African Politics and International Relations is a series for scholars and students working on African politics and International Relations and related disciplines Volumes concentrate on contemporary developments in African political science political economy and International Relations such as electoral politics democratization decentralization gender and political representation the political impact of natural resources the dynamics and consequences of conflict comparative political thought and the nature of the continent s engagement with the East and

West Comparative and mixed methods work is particularly encouraged Case studies are welcomed but should demonstrate the broader theoretical and empirical implications of the study and its wider relevance to contemporary debates The focus of the series is on sub Saharan Africa although proposals that explain how the region engages with North Africa and other parts of the world are of interest General Editors Nic Cheeseman Peace Medie and Ricardo Soares de Oliveira

Chains of Justice Sonia Cardenas,2014-04-02 Sonia Cardenas offers the most comprehensive account to date of the emergence of national human rights institutions exploring why states create these institutions and examining their impact on contemporary human rights struggles

The New Conditionality Jeremy Gould,2005-09 Poverty Reduction Strategies PRSs are the new buzzwords in development aid Some 70 countries have already elaborated them in response to World Bank and bilateral aid agency requirements This book presents detailed field level research on the application of PRSs in three countries Tanzania Vietnam and Honduras It describes the changing relations between the governments of these countries donor agencies and civic organizations that have taken part in formulating the new generation of PRSs Poverty Reduction Strategies run up against a central paradox in giving decisive policymaking powers to external agencies the very process of drawing up development strategies to prioritise reducing poverty can gravely undermine the consolidation of democratic forces structures and ideas in developing countries

Strengthening Parliamentary Democracy in SADC Countries Daudi R. Mukangara,2005 This report argues that parliament s engagement with civil society in Tanzania will be hampered if parliament continues to be subordinate or subservient to the executive Both presidential and parliamentary systems have the potential to emasculate legislatures This potential is increased in modern times by the near monopoly of information that all executive branches tend to hold Since 1984 the Tanzanian political system has been struggling with limiting the power of the executive which was inherited from the hybrid nature of the semi presidential and semi parliamentary form of executive adopted since 1962 Today parliament performs routine scrutiny of the government but appears helpless for example in challenging the inadequate disclosure of international financial commitments and in opening up standing committee deliberations to the public

Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald,2013 Tanzania has been independent in 2011 for 50 years While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts Hence Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992 with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation grouped in four spheres the state the political civil and economic society Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010 The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated For that a substantive democratic development is necessary Journal of African Policy Studies ,2007      Tanzania National Bibliography ,1999
