Primary Liver Cancer in Japan Takayoshi Tobe, Haruo Kameda, Masahiko Okudaira, Masao Ohto, Yasuo Endo, Michio Mito, Eizo Okamoto, Kyuichi Tanikawa, Masamichi Kojiro, 2012-12-06 Hepatocellular carcinoma HCC is common in the Far East and South Africa but is rare in the United States and Europe The vast experience of the East which has led to marked improvement in the prognosis of patients with HCC is made available to researchers worldwide in this monograph The book is based on an enormous amount of data that has been collected and analyzed by the Liver Cancer Study Group of Japan The data stems from a survey on HCC in Japan since 1965 and contains information from more than 30 000 patients with regard to age distribution past medical history diagnostic procedures frequency of HBV associated antigens and antibodies surgical and conservative treatments gross anatomical and histological features of the tumors pathology of the noncancerous portions distant metastasis and survival rate This data is a tremendous contribution to our understanding of the epidemiology pathology and the latest developments of the molecular biology and clinical problems of primary liver cancer

Hepatocellular Carcinoma Masami Yamanaka, Gotaro Toda, Teruji Tanaka, 1997 Hardbound This volume of Progress in Hepatology contains articles on basic and clinical research on hepatocellular carcinoma HCC in Japan focusing on its prevention and treatment The number of patients with HCC is now increasing in Japan and HCC arises as the main cause of death in patients with liver cirrhosis in Japan This volume addresses the trials for the prevention of HCC growth in the chronically injured liver by hepatitis viruses and deals with the epidemiology pathology and genomic changes of HCC in Japan

Okio Hino, 2002    Risk Factors for Hepatocellular Carcinoma in a Japanese Population, 2008    Progress in Hepatocellular Carcinoma Treatment K. Okita, 2012-12-06 According to a recent report from the Japanese Ministry of Health and Welfare the mortality rate for hepatocellular carcinoma HCC is more than 30 per 100000 population In addition epidemiologists predict an increase in this figure by the year 2015 because of the rather high incidence of chronic liver diseases caused by HCV The same situation has been observed in other Asian countries It seems that HCC is likely to be an endemic disease because of the higher prevalence of chronic hepatitis and liver cirrhosis caused by HBV HCV and or aflatoxins in Asian and African countries We also note that an interesting paper appeared in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine describing the increase in younger HCC patients in the United States as compared with past decades At present silent hepatitis C infection is now smoldering in 4 million mostly unsuspecting Americans Those carriers will be candidates for chronic liver disease which is a predisposing factor for the development of HCC In Europe there are an estimated 5 million carriers Accordingly it is important to do all we can to reduce the prevalence of HCC not only in African and Asian countries but also in the United States and Europe With this perspective last year the Japanese Society for

Hepatology in cooperation with the Ministry of Health and Welfare initiated a national campaign to fight HCC      Pathology of Hepatocellular Carcinoma Masamichi Kojiro,2009-02-12 This book covers the huge advances made in clinical diagnosis enabling earlier detection while addressing the recent progress made in treatment of hepatocellular carcinoma HCC to enable successful therapy It draws on the expertise of an internationally recognized author famed for his understanding knowledge and efforts in defining terms and diagnosis in this area The text reviews the full range of pathological information of HCC based on the study of surgical cases and biopsy materials along with images to help compare findings that may be encountered by pathologists It also makes special reference to developments in early stage HCC detection and premalignant lesions which can increase effective treatment      Early Detection and Treatment of Liver Cancer Kunio

Okuda,Takayoshi Tobe,Tomoyuki Kitagawa,1991 Aims to review primary liver cancer studies in Japan to evaluate their impact in the study of hepatocellular carcinoma and to introduce them to a wider audience Emphasis has been placed on the most important and practical aspects in the clinical setting early detection and treatment      Hepatocellular Carcinoma: New Insights for the Healthcare Professional: 2011 Edition ,2012-01-09 Hepatocellular Carcinoma New Insights for the Healthcare Professional 2011 Edition is a ScholarlyEditions eBook that delivers timely authoritative and comprehensive information about Hepatocellular Carcinoma The editors have built Hepatocellular Carcinoma New Insights for the Healthcare Professional 2011 Edition on the vast information databases of ScholarlyNews You can expect the information about Hepatocellular Carcinoma in this eBook to be deeper than what you can access anywhere else as well as consistently reliable authoritative informed and relevant The content of Hepatocellular Carcinoma New Insights for the Healthcare Professional 2011 Edition has been produced by the world's leading scientists engineers analysts research institutions and companies All of the content is from peer reviewed sources and all of it is written assembled and edited by the editors at ScholarlyEditions and available exclusively from us You now have a source you can cite with authority confidence and credibility More information is available at <http://www.ScholarlyEditions.com>      Progress in Hepatocellular Carcinoma

Treatment K Okita,1999-12-01 The rising incidence of hepatocellular cancer HCC is a cause for concern in all parts of the world today Epidemiologists predict that HCC will become endemic because of the large numbers of carriers of hepatitis viruses that lead to the chronic liver diseases which in turn are predisposing factors for the development of HCC The eradication of HCC thus becomes an urgent priority Against this background Progress in HCC Treatment was the focus of the Yamaguchi Japan Symposium held in December 1998 Japanese hepatologists unsurpassed in the diagnosis and treatment of HCC were joined by specialists from other parts of the world to exchange the latest information about HCC treatment Topics included percutaneous ablation of HCC ultrasonographic screening for early detection surgical treatment and prevention by fibro-suppression The papers collected in this volume provide a wealth of information on HCC for hepatologists physicians and others in the field      Hepatocellular Carcinoma Toshiro Nakashima,Masamichi Kojiro,2013-11-09 Hepatocellular carcinoma is one of the most common fatal malignancies of mankind Up to a few decades ago it was looked upon as a cancer which aroused mainly academic concern but relatively little clinical interest because its therapy and prognosis had a most unfavorable outlook Indeed it was mostly recognized only at autopsy Recently this pessimism has radically changed and is disappearing to a rapidly accelerating degree Many of the scientific contributions at this change in outlook are the result of research in the Far East first Japan and then gradually extending to its neighbors The introduction of experimental hepatocarcinogens by Yoshida more than 50 years ago may have been one of the first important steps Hepatocellular carcinoma shows a characteristic geographical distribution With the highest incidence in China Taiwan Southeast Asia and sub Saharan Africa followed by southern and eastern Europe while generally the incidence is rather low in western and northern Europe and North and South America

Neoplasms of the Liver Kunio Okuda,Kamal G. Ishak,2014-04-20 Primary liver cancer is a rather unusual malignancy in that the incidence varies tremendously from one geographical area to another While relatively uncommon in Western countries it is the most prevalent malignant neoplasm in Southeast Asia South Africa and many other regions in all the countries in which primary liver cancer is very prevalent account for more than two thirds of the world's population In China alone approximately 100 000 people die every year from primary liver cancer mostly hepatocellular carcinoma The incidence is rising in some countries especially Japan where it has doubled among males in the past 15 years or so a staggering and puzzling trend Since the demonstration of an etiological relationship between hepatitis B virus infection and hepatocellular carcinoma intensive research has been conducted in an effort to elucidate the role of the virus in hepatocarcinogenesis Though much progress has been made a full understanding of the molecular events leading to malignant transformation of the hepatocyte will probably require many more years of rigorous investigation Chemical carcinogens and several industrial pollutants may also be involved in the etiopathogenesis of neoplastic liver disease

Hepatocellular Carcinoma: International Consensus and Controversies ,2007    Hepatocellular Carcinoma Joseph W Y Lau,2008-01-03 This essential book is a compendium of papers written by an international team of world renowned experts who cover topics in their respective areas of expertise Presenting the most up to date knowledge of hepatocellular carcinoma it covers all topics including those more controversial ones in this rapidly advancing field from epidemiology to prevention from molecular biology to gross pathology from screening to atypical presentation from diagnosis to treatment and from assessment to choice of appropriate treatment This volume is therefore an important contribution to the field of hepatocellular carcinoma    The LEC Rat Michio Mori,Michihiro C. Yoshida,Noritoshi Takeichi,Naoyuki Taniguchi,2012-12-06 The LEC strain of rats which spontaneously develop acute hepatitis associated with jaundice chronic hepatitis and ultimately hepatocellular carcinomas was established by scientists in Sapporo Japan Careful observation and breeding led to the initial discovery of this characteristic inherited liver disease in rats Subsequent collaboration between scientists in Sapporo and other centers has revealed an autosomal recessive nature of inheritance along with a variety of histopathological and biochemical findings The causative mechanism underlying this abnormality remained a mystery for some time providing a challenge for many scientists who were attracted to the quest for clues to this enigma In particular the mechanism of spontaneous development of hepatocellular carcinomas in rats overcoming the acute phase of hepatitis and surviving with chronic hepatitis proved extremely interesting because the involvement of a causative virus had been excluded in the early stages of investigation Professor Michio Mori of Sapporo Medical College played a key role in the study of LEC rats especially in the elucidation of the pathogenesis of hepatitis and hepatocellular carcinoma He is one of the editors of this monograph which is composed of original contributions by the many scientists who have carried out their own studies on LEC rats Of the various histopathological and biochemical alterations which have been reported some are clearly secondary or tertiary events sequential to the primary change caused by gene mutation Liver Cancer in Japan - State of the Art Masatoshi Kudo, 2014 This issue is a dedicated supplement published in addition to the regular issues of Oncology containing congress abstracts Oncology is a well respected international peer reviewed journal in Oncology Supplement issues are included in the subscription
