Governance and Politics Prakash Chand Kandpal, 2024-07-26 This book traces the development environment discourse in India and examines the multi layered interaction between society and nature in the light of the role of the state judiciary and the civil society Through an array of perspectives the volume challenges the conventional approach to understanding the environmental politics in South Asia without considering the role of the civil society and other informal actors which has radically altered the conventional articulation of the phenomenon The volume underlines distinct structural characteristics of developmental politics in India and the social concerns and challenges which come in the way of environmental policy and governance in India It is a meaningful intervention in unearthing significant socio political and economic processes which are critical to the environmental governance in India The book will not only be helpful in studying the state of policy administration and politics of environmental discourse in India but also guide the policymakers to explore the sustainable ways of environmental governance in South Asia Insightful and lucid this book will be useful to the students researchers and faculty working in the field of political science public administration public policy political sociology political economy and governance studies It will also be an invaluable and interesting reading for those interested in South Asian studies

Environmental Issues in Latin America and the Caribbean Aldemaro Romero, Sarah E. West, 2006-02-23 We began this book with a simple goal to assemble a collection of readings for an undergraduate interdisciplinary course taught by one of us AR at Macalester College This course explored environmental problems and solutions in Latin America and the Caribbean using both natural science and social science methods After a literature search failed to produce an anthology of interdisciplinary readings appropriate for the course we set out to compile one We sought papers that dealt with the most salient environmental problems in the region that were written by experts and that were appropriate for undergraduate students Most importantly we sought papers that clearly demonstrate the contributions that experts from one discipline can make to analysis in another discipline We sought papers that for example show how biological species assessments can be used to inform the politics of biodiversity conservation We sought papers that show how economic analysis can be used to predict the likely effects of human behavior on ecosystems We sought papers that pay close attention to how institutions both national and international affect the outcome of environmental initiatives To find essays that fit our needs we sent out a world wide call for papers chose the most promising submissions and subjected these submissions to peer review The twelve approved essays represent the work of researchers from Latin America and the Caribbean the United States Canada Europe and Australia All the authors have direct experience with Latin America and the Caribbean and the region s problems
