in John Jacobus Kobus Kok investigates the depth and applicability of Jesus healing narratives in John's gospel. Against the background of an ancient group-oriented worldview, it goes beyond the impasse of most Western approaches to interpreting the Biblical healing narratives to date. He argues that the concept of healing was understood in antiquity as in some parts of Africa in a much broader way than we tend to understand it today. He shows inter alia why the interaction between Jesus and the Samaritan woman could be interpreted as a healing narrative illustrating the ancient interrelationship between healing, restoration, and reconciliation.

Communities of Restoration Thomas Noakes-Duncan, 2017-10-19. By bringing together the insights of ecclesial ethics, an approach that emphasizes the distinctive nature of the church as the community that forms its mind and character after its reading of Scripture, with the theory and practice of restorative justice, a way of conceiving justice making that emerged from the Mennonite Anabaptist tradition, this book shows why a theological account of the theory and practice of restorative justice is fruitful for articulating and clarifying the witness of the church, especially when faced with conflict or wrongdoing. This can help extend the church's imagination as to how it might better become God's community of restoration as it reflects on the ways in which the justice of God is taking shape in its own community. How does an ecclesial context shape the theological apprehension and praxis of justice? This question orientates the book. In particular, it asks how, in view of its members having been admitted into God's restoring justice in Christ, the church might embody in the world this same justice of restoring right relationships. While Christian reflection on the nature of justice has tended to favour a judicial and retributive conception of justice it will be argued that the biblical understanding of the justice of God is best understood as a saving liberating and restorative justice It is this restorative conception that ought to guide the community that reads Scripture so that it might be embodied in life
