Retailing In England During The Industrial Revolution:

Retailing in England During the Industrial Revolution David Alexander, 1970 Perceptions of Retailing in Early Modern England Nancy Cox, Karin Dannehl, 2017-05-15 Whilst there has been much recent scholarly work on retailing during the early modern period less is known about how people at the time perceived retailing both as onlookers artists and commentators and as participants Centred on the general theme of perceptions the authors address this gap in our knowledge by looking at a different aspect of consumption They focus on two ancillary themes the first is location and how contemporaries perceived the settlements in which there were shops the other is distance Pictures prints novels diaries and promotional literature of the tradespeople themselves provide much of the evidence Many of these sources are not new to historians but they have not been scrutinized and analysed with the questions in mind that are posed here The methodology to be employed has been developed by Nancy Cox over the last decade and is used successfully in her book The Complete Tradesman and in the compilation of the forthcoming Dictionary of Traded Goods and Commodities 1550 1800 This book will find a ready market with scholars concerned with British social and economic history in the early modern period Although it is first and foremost a book written by historians for historians it nevertheless borrows concepts and approaches from various disciplines concerned with theories of consumption material culture and representational art

The Emergence of Modern Retailing 1750-1950 Gary Akehurst, Nicholas Alexander, 2013-02-01 The history of retail business development is an under researched area This book considers the emergence and development of modern retailing from an historical and management perspective in the period 1750 1950 addressing the need for further research and providing examples of current research activity It considers the early emergence of retail forms in the late eighteenth century the evolution of retail forms in the nineteenth century and the late adaptation of retail management in the early twentieth century

Tradition and Innovation in English Retailing, 1700 to 1850 Ian Mitchell, 2016-02-24 Three decades of research into retailing in England from the seventeenth to nineteenth centuries has established a seemingly clear narrative fixed shops were widespread from an early date modern methods of retailing were common from at least the early eighteenth century shopping was a skilled activity throughout the period and consumers were increasingly part of and aware of being part of a polite and fashionable culture All of this is true but is it the only narrative Research has shown that markets were still important well into the nineteenth century and small scale producer retailers co existed with modern warehouses Many shops were not smart The development of modern retailing therefore was a fractured and fragmented process This book presents a reassessment of the standard view by challenging the usefulness of concepts like traditional and modern examining consumption and retailing as inextricably linked aspects of a single process and by using the idea of narrative to discuss the roles and perceptions of the various actors in this process such as retailers shoppers consumers local authorities and commentators The book is therefore structured around some of these competing narratives in order to provide a richer and more varied picture of consumption and retailing in provincial England      Retailing: The evolution and development of retailing A. M. Findlay, Leigh Sparks, 2002      Consumer Behaviour and Material Culture in Britain, 1660-1760 Lorna Weatherill, 2002-09-11 This is a detailed study of the material lives of the middle classes in the pre industrial era a period which saw considerable growth in consumption Lorna Weatherill has brought her highly important survey up to date in the light of new research She provides a new introduction and bibliography taking account of the latest academic writing and methodological advances including computing and offers further conclusions about her work and its place in current literature Three main types of documentation are used to construct the overall picture diaries household accounts and probate inventories In investigating these sources she interprets the social meaning of material goods and then goes on to relate this evidence to the social structures of Britain by wealth status and locality Breaking new ground in focusing on households and the use of probate inventories Weatherill has provided a book which gives both a general account of the domestic environment of the period and a scholarly analysis of the data on consumption patterns      Retailing Larry O'Brien, Frank Harris, 2012-08-09 This textbook provides an up to date comprehensive and fully integrated treatment of retailing as a and industry b a force shaping social attitudes and contemporary culture and c a force for change in modern townscapes Unlike other texts which focus on specific topics this book provides a treatment of retailing which will appeal to geographers economists planners and social scientists First published 1991      Retailing in the European Union Stewart Howe, 2005-08-12 A timely study of the difference retail structures across Europe this book offers an insightful overview of the internationalization of retailing and asks important questions about the effectiveness of different retailing sectors

Shopkeepers and Master Artisans in Nineteenth-Century Europe Geoffrey Crossick, Heinz-Gerhard Haupt, 2016-07-01 First published in 1984 Shopkeepers and master artisans had a striking presence in the history of nineteenth century Europe not only in the development of industrial and urban economies but also the fabric of social life and the politics of protest The experience of 1848 the differing pace of various forms of nationalism and liberalism and at the end of the century the shift towards right wing nationalist or Catholic political movements reflected a developing crisis in the petite bourgeoisie The essays examine the nature of this crisis and ask critical questions about the social relations of the petite bourgeoisie with the developing working classes This book as a whole provides a fresh and integrated approach to the world of these shopkeepers and master artisans and illuminates much else besides in the social history of nineteenth century Europe      Chain Stores in the Golden Age of the British High Street Kathryn A Morrison, 2025-05-08 Familiar multiples like Boots Burton s Marks Spencer and Woolworth s plus a host of smaller chains forged the character of Britain s high streets in the late 19th and 20th centuries Multiple retailing was a supremely successful phenomenon loved by thrifty shoppers but feared by independent competitors It is explored here through the lens of its shops and stores which are generously illustrated with archive and modern photographs These range from the Edwardian grandeur of Boots to the Art Deco splendour of Burton's and the utilitarian post war buildings of Littlewoods. Smaller chains are not neglected even if all that survives are weathered signs or mosaic pavements. The time is ripe for a study of chain stores. Britain's retail giants have been under scrutiny since the shocking collapse of Woolworth's in 2009 followed by BHS in 2016. Online shopping was already undermining bricks and mortar retailing when the COVID pandemic struck in 2020 accelerating the process. The recent demise of Debenhams, Arcadia, Wilko and others leaves vast empty premises in town centres nationwide. Our high streets are changing but their legacy of chain store buildings can play a constructive role in repurposing them for future generations.

British Economic and Social History R. C. Richardson, William Henry Chaloner, 1996      The Cambridge Urban History of Britain Peter Clark, David Michael Palliser, Martin J. Daunton, 2000-07-20. This volume examines when and how Britain became the first modern urban nation.

Women in Business, 1700-1850 Nicola Jane Phillips, 2006. A reappraisal of the business enterprises of women in the long eighteenth century showing them to be more flourishing than previously thought.

The Market in History Liberty Fund, 1986      Cultures of Selling Laura Ugolini, 2018-12-07. The study of consumption and its relationship to cultural and social values has become a vibrant and important field in recent years. Hitherto however relatively few detailed and full length works on this topic have been published. In what will become a seminal volume this book examines retail selling in various historical contexts and locations as both an activity at once mundane and almost universal. The book introduces the reader to the existing literature relevant to the subject and explores the widespread perceptions of moral ambiguity surrounding the practice of selling consumer goods ranging from concerns about the adulteration of goods to fears about sharp practice on the part of retailers and places such concerns in the context of wider societal values and ideas. The ambivalence towards retail selling and sellers is also a central focus of the collection focussing on the attempts by retailers to develop selling techniques and successful practices of salesmanship and at the same time establish widely shared understandings of good retailing. The book also delves into the more dubious practices of retail selling including practices on the margin of legality, the issue of credit and changing attitudes towards debt. Uniquely the book examines how sales techniques relate to the wider context of a whole shopping experience or shopping environment. Taken as a whole this volume will provide a first port of call for students, researchers and others interested in exploring consumer cultures and the cultural norms and practices involved in the sale of consumer goods in various historical periods and geographical contexts.

The Business of Beauty Jessica P. Clark, 2020-04-30. The Business of Beauty is a unique exploration of the history of beauty consumption and business in Victorian and Edwardian London. Illuminating national and cultural contingencies specific to London as a global metropolis it makes an important intervention by challenging the view of those who like their historical contemporaries perceive the 19th and early 20th centuries as devoid of beauty praxis let alone a commercial beauty culture. Contrary to this perception The Business of Beauty reveals that Victorian and Edwardian women and men developed a number of tacit strategies to transform their looks including the purchase of new goods and services.

from a heterogeneous group of urban entrepreneurs hairdressers barbers perfumers wigmakers complexion specialists hair restorers manicurists and beauty culturists Mining trade journals census data periodical print and advice literature Jessica P Clark takes us on a journey through Victorian and Edwardian London's beauty businesses from the shady back parlors of Sarah Madame Rachel Leverson to the elegant showrooms of Eugène Rimmel into the first Mayfair salon of Mrs Helena Titus aka Helena Rubinstein By revealing these stories Jessica P Clark revises traditional chronologies of British beauty consumption and provides the historical background to 20th century developments led by Rubinstein and others Weaving together histories of gender fashion and business to investigate the ways that Victorian critiques of self fashioning and beautification defined both the buying and selling of beauty goods this is a revealing resource for scholars students fashion followers and beauty enthusiasts alike

The Urge to Splurge Laura Byrne Paquet, 2003-10-31 Tracing the cultural evolution of shopping from outdoor bazaars to suburban malls this brazen look at the history and psychology of one of humankind's oldest pursuits considers the variety of reasons and excuses that drive the impulse to buy An opulent collection of shopping places are described including ancient markets covered arcades of 18th century France gallerias of 19th century Italy and megamalls of 1950s America Examples from literature and other sources explore the historically conflicted attitudes about shopping it seems that fashionistas have always fought over the trendiest hemlines and hats The development of buying options is detailed from mail order catalogs and Internet stores to retail districts and massive supermarkets

Turning Houses into Homes Clive Edwards, 2017-05-15 From the earliest times people have striven to turn their houses into homes through the use of decoration and furnishings stimulating in turn a major commercial sector dedicated to offering the products and services essential to feed the ever changing dictates of domestic fashion Whilst there is plentiful evidence to show that these phenomena can be traced to medieval times it is arguable that the eighteenth century witnessed the birth of a widespread and sophisticated consumer society With a comparatively wealthy and socially mobile society eighteenth century Britain proved to be a fertile ground for ideas of home improvement and beautification which were to persist to the present day Turning Houses into Homes not only maps the history changes development and structure of the retail furnishing industry in Britain over three centuries but also examines the relationships between the retailer and the consumer looking at how retailers helped stimulate and shape the demand of their customers Whilst work has been done on specific aspects of the home very little has been written on the interaction between the retailer and consumer and the pressures brought to bear on them by issues such as gender education status symbolism taste decoration hygiene comfort and entertainment As such this book offers a valuable conjunction of retail history and consumption practices which are examined through a multi disciplinary approach to explore both their intimate connections and their wider roles in society

Concepts of Value in European Material Culture, 1500-1900 Bert De Munck, Dries Lyna, 2016-03-09 In contemporary society it would seem self evident that people allow the market to determine the values of products and services For everything from a loaf of bread to a work of art to a simple haircut value is expressed in monetary terms and seen as determined primarily by the objective interplay between supply and demand Yet this price mechanism is itself embedded in conventions and frames of reference which differed according to time place and product type Moreover the dominance of the conventions of utility maximising and calculative homo economicus is a relatively new phenomenon and one which directly correlates to the steady advent of capitalism in early modern Europe This volume brings together scholars with expertise in a variety of related fields including economic history the history of consumption and material culture art history and the history of collecting to explore changing concepts of value from the early modern period to the nineteenth century and present a new view on the advent of modern economic practices Jointly they fundamentally challenge traditional historical narratives about the rise of our contemporary market economy and consumer society      Feeding the Victorian City Roger Scola, 1992
