Decentralization and Development Partnerships Lessons from Uganda goes beyond theory to compare academic assumptions to the reality of decentralization implementation in modern Uganda Although the process is by no means free of difficulties Saito concludes that a win win outcome is a real possibility The Politics of Development in Morocco Sylvia I. Bergh,2017-01-30 Since the mid 1990s Morocco has sought to present itself as a model of genuine and gradual reform with decentralisation as a key tenet of this Here Sylvia Bergh investigates the dynamics of popular participation and local governance testing the extent to which the current structure builds local capacity or whether it is in fact a tool for soft state control She narrates the realities of local administration and civil society to shed critical light on questions of democratic transition in North Africa Her assessment of decentralisation and participatory development projects in rural Morocco and the legal and policy frameworks in which they operate leads to the conclusion that they have generally not yet led to an expansion of a civil society able to build local capacity or enhance bottom up empowerment Grounded in an approach of the anthropology of policy this book makes an important contribution to literature on the democratisation development and governance in North Africa Health Care in Uganda Paul Hutchinson, Demissie Habte, Mary Mulusa, 1999-01-01 The government of Uganda faces a multitude of challenges in the health care arena from ensuring that health care services are delivered in the most equitable manner to structuring the health care delivery system to be most effective to waging campaigns against the leading causes of mortality and morbidity The government needs the best information available on existing conditions in order to devise strategies to successfully meet these challenges This technical paper summarizes the results of three research efforts concerning current health care issues in Uganda Its purpose is to summarize key actions and identify new challenges In Part I Equity of Access to Health Services in Uganda The Effects of Income Gender Proximity to Services and Quality of Care the author examines a number of factors that affect access to health services including quality of services and income Part II of this technical paper Decentralization of Health Services in Uganda Moving Toward Improved Delivery of Services summarizes the key actions that have been undertaken during the decentralization of Uganda's health sector and identifies challenges that are emerging during this process Part III Malaria A Priority Health Problem summarizes the status of malaria control in Uganda and highlights some of the key issues that need to be addressed to further strengthen malaria control efforts This paper should prove useful to those working in Uganda and in other countries facing similar policy changes to anticipate the challenges as they seek to improve the quality of health and other public services The Role of Biodiversity Conservation in the Transition to Rural Sustainability Stephen S. Palanithurai, Varadarajan Ragupathy, 2006 Rural Electrification Hisham Zerriffi, 2010-11-08 For those in developed nations suddenly being without electricity is a disaster power cuts have us fretting over the food stored in the freezer and even a few hours without lights televisions or air conditioning is an ordeal However for an estimated 1.6 billion people worldwide the absence of electricity is their daily experience An untold number of others live with electricity that is erratic and of poor quality How can electric power be brought into their lives when the centralized utility models that have evolved in developed nations are not an economically viable option Poor rural communities in developing nations cannot simply be plugged in to a grid Small scale Distributed Generation DG ranging from individual solar home systems to village level grids run off diesel generators could provide the answer and this book compares around 20 DG enterprises and projects in Brazil Cambodia and China each of which is considered to be a business model for distributed rural electrification While large centralized power projects often rely on big subsidies this study shows that privately run and localized solutions can be both self sustaining and replicable Its three sections provide a general introduction to the issue of electrification and rural development set out the details of the case studies and compare the models involved and discuss the important thematic issues of equity access to capital and cost recovery Hisham Zerriffi shows that in each case it is not simply a matter of matching a particular technology to a particular need Numerous institutional factors come into play including the regulatory regime access to financial services and government utility support or opposition to the DG alternative Despite this in many countries the question is not whether DG has a role to play Rather it is a question of how it will play a role

Public Sector Reforms in Developing Countries Charles Conteh, Ahmed Shafiqul Huque, 2014-04-03 The underpinning assumption of public management in the developing world as a process of planned change is increasingly being recognized as unrealistic In reality the practice of development management is characterized by processes of mutual adjustment among individuals agencies and interest groups that can constrain behaviour as well as provide incentives for collaborative action Paradoxes inevitably emerge in policy network practice and design The ability to manage government departments and operations has become less important than the ability to navigate the complex world of interconnected policy implementation processes Public sector reform policies and programmes as a consequence are a study in the complexities of the institutional and environmental context in which these reforms are pursued Building on theory and practice this book argues that advancing the theoretical frontlines of development management research and practice can benefit from developing models based on innovation collaboration and governance The themes addressed in Public Sector Reforms in Developing Countries will enable public managers in developing countries cope in uncertain and turbulent environments as they seek optimal fits between their institutional goals and environmental contingencies Public Expenditure Analysis World Bank,2005 Focuses on the public sector in developing countries Provides tools of analysis for discovering equity in tax burdens as well as in public spending and judging government performance in its role in safeguarding the interests of the poor and disadvantaged Outlines a framework for a rights based approach to citizen empowerment in other words creating an institutional design with appropriate rules restraints and incentives to make the public sector responsive and accountable to an average voter Decentralization and Infrastructure in the Global Economy Jonas Frank,Jorge Martinez-Vazquez,2015-07-03 The subnational dimension of infrastructure has emerged as one of the greatest challenges in contemporary public finance policy and management Ensuring the efficient provision of infrastructure represents a challenge for all countries irrespective of their level of centralization or decentralization This book proposes an innovative approach for the strengthening of decentralized public investment and infrastructure management Decentralization and Infrastructure in the Global Economy From Gaps to Solutions covers the most important aspects of infrastructure investment in a decentralized setting It discusses infrastructure gaps and the quality of subnational spending how functional responsibilities financing and equalization can be designed sector specific arrangements in high expenditure areas such as health education and roads key steps of the public investment cycle and management and analyses the political economy and corruption challenges that typically accompany decentralized infrastructure projects This book challenges some of the well accepted principles of intergovernmental fiscal relations and will be useful to researchers and practitioners of public finance policy and management How Power Shapes Energy Transitions in Southeast Asia Jens Marquardt,2016-12-01 An understanding of the role of energy related governance systems and the conditions required for a shift towards renewables in developing countries is urgently needed in order to tap into the global potential of low carbon development Although renewable energy sources have become technically feasible and economically viable social and political factors continue to persist as the most critical obstacles for their dissemination How Power Shapes Energy Transitions in Southeast Asia conceptualizes power for the field of sustainable energy governance Based on empirical findings from the Philippines and Indonesia the book develops an analytical approach that incorporates power theory into a multi level governance framework The book begins with a profound background on renewable energy development around the world and presents major trends in development cooperation A power based multi level governance approach is introduced that is rooted in development thinking Examining how coordination and power relations shape the
