Rethinking the Biography of the Actor and Entertainer

Introduction

When we issued a call for papers on rethinking what is often produced as the formulaic biography of the actor and entertainer—formulaic in terms of its linear narrative, market-dictated blend of artistic triumph and sexual or familial scandal, and unquestioned nonanalytic paraphrase of source material—we could never have predicted the exciting, thought-provoking diversity manifest in the four essays making up this issue's thematic cluster. The “rethinking” of contributors Amy E. Hughes and Eileen Curley here ranges in source material from the 1200-page diary of Harry Watkins (1825–1894), a “middling” American

Roudané, 1997-12-11 This is a collection of thirteen original essays from a team of leading scholars in the field In this wide ranging volume the contributors cover a healthy sampling of Williams s works from the early apprenticeship years in the 1930s through to his last play before his death in 1983 Something Cloudy Something Clear In addition to essays on such major plays as The Glass Menagerie A Streetcar Named Desire and Cat on a Hot Tin Roof among others the contributors also consider selected minor plays short stories poems and biographical concerns The Companion also features a chapter on selected key productions as well as a bibliographic essay surveying the major critical statements on Williams Tennessee Williams Philip Kolin, 1998-10-28 The plays of Tennessee Williams are some of the greatest triumphs of the American theatre If Williams is not the most important American playwright he surely is one of the two or three most celebrated rivaled only by Eugene O Neill and Arthur Miller In a career that spanned almost five decades he created an extensive canon of more than 70 plays His contributions to the American theatre are inestimable and revolutionary The Glass Menagerie 1945 introduced poetic realism to the American stage A Streetcar Named Desire 1947 explored sexual and psychological issues that had never before been portrayed in American culture Cat on a Hot Tin Roof 1955 dared to challenge the political and sexual mores of the Eisenhower era and his plays of the 1970s are among the most innovative works produced on the American stage But Williams was far more than a gifted and prolific playwright He created two collections of poetry two novels four collections of stories memoirs and scores of essays Because of his towering presence in American drama Williams has attracted the attention of some of the most insightful scholars and critics of the twentieth century The 1990s in particular ushered in a renaissance of Williams research including a definitive biography a descriptive bibliography and numerous books and scholarly articles This reference book synthesizes the vast body of research on Tennessee Williams and offers a performance history of his works Under the guidance of one of the leading authorities on Williams expert contributors have written chapters on each of Williams works or clusters of works Each chapter includes a discussion of the biographical context of a work or group of writings a survey of the bibliographic history an analysis of major critical approaches which looks at themes characters symbols and plots a consideration of the major critical problems posed by the work an overview of chief productions and film and television versions a concluding interpretation and a bibliography of secondary sources The volume concludes with a selected general bibliography and a comprehensive index

Postregional Fictions Clare Chadd, 2021-07-07 Drawing from recent debates about the validity of regional studies and skepticism surrounding the efficacy of the concept of authenticity Clare Chadd's Postregional Fictions focuses on questions of southern regional authenticity in fiction published by Barry Hannah from 1972 to 2001 The first monograph on the Mississippi author's work to appear since his death this study considers the ways in which Hannah's novels and short stories challenge established conceptual understandings of the U S South Hannah's writing often features elements of metafiction through which the putative sense of southernness his stories dramatize is complicated by an intense self reflexivity about the extent to which a sense of place has never been foundational or essential but has always been constructed and performed Such texts locate a productive terrain between the local and the global with particular relevance for critical apprehensions of the post South and postsouthern literature Offering sustained close readings of selected stories and focusing especially on Hannah's late work Chadd argues that his fiction reveals the region constantly shifting in a process of mythmaking dialogue and performance In turn she uses Hannah's work to suggest how notions of the South and southernness might survive the various deconstructive approaches leveled against them in recent decades of southern studies scholarship Rather than seeing an impasse between the regional and the global Chadd's reading of Hannah shows the two existing and flourishing in tandem In Postregional Fictions Chadd offers a new interpretation of Hannah based on an appreciation of the vital intersection of southern and postmodern elements in his work

Marina Warner and the Ethics of Telling Silenced Stories Lisa Propst, 2020-12-17 Efforts to fight back against silencing are central to social justice movements and scholarly fields such as feminist and postcolonial studies But claiming to give voice to people who have been silenced always risks appropriating those people's stories Lisa Propst argues that the British novelist and public intellectual Marina Warner offers some of the most provocative contemporary interventions into this dilemma Tracing her writing from her early journalism to her novels short stories and studies of myths and fairy tales Propst shows that in Warner's work features such as stylized voices and narrative silences tales that Warner's books hint at but never tell question the authority of the writer to tell other people's stories At the same time they demonstrate the power of literature to make new ethical connections between people inviting readers to reflect on whom they are responsible to and how they are implicated in social systems that perpetuate silencing By exploring how to combat silencing through narrative without reproducing it Marina Warner and the Ethics of Telling Silenced Stories takes up an issue crucial not just to literature and art but to journalists policy makers human rights activists and all people striving to formulate their own responses to injustice

Rosenfeld's Lives Steven J. Zipperstein, 2009-04-01 Born in Chicago in 1918 the prodigiously gifted and erudite Isaac Rosenfeld was anointed a genius upon the publication of his luminescent novel Passage from Home and was expected to surpass even his closest friend and rival Saul Bellow Yet when felled by a heart attack at the age of thirty eight Rosenfeld had published relatively little his life reduced to a metaphor for literary failure In this deeply contemplative book Steven J Zipperstein seeks to reclaim Rosenfeld's legacy by opening up his work Zipperstein examines for the first time the small mountain of unfinished manuscripts the writer left behind as well as his fiercely candid journals and letters In the process Zipperstein unearths a turbulent life that was obsessively grounded in a profound commitment to the ideals of the writing life Rosenfeld's Lives is a fascinating exploration of literary genius and aspiration and the paradoxical power of literature to elevate and to enslave It illuminates the cultural and political tensions of post war America Jewish intellectual life of the era and most poignantly the struggle at the heart of any writer's life
