

An aerial photograph of a large, vibrant green park. Numerous people are scattered across the grassy area, some walking in small groups, others alone. The park is bordered by trees with bright yellow and orange autumn foliage. A path or bridge structure is visible in the lower right corner. The overall scene is bright and lively, suggesting a public space that is well-used and integrated with nature.

Rethinking Urban Parks:

Rethinking Urban Parks Setha Low, Dana Taplin, Suzanne Scheld, 2005-11-01 Annotation A study of five major urban parks including New York's Prospect Park and Philadelphia's Independence National Historical Park that offers a blueprint for promoting and maintaining cultural diversity in parks around the world Rethinking Urban Parks Setha M. Low, Dana Taplin, Suzanne Scheld, 2009-05-21 A study of public recreation space and how urban developers can encourage ethnic diversity through planning that supports multiculturalism Urban parks such as New York City's Central Park provide vital public spaces where city dwellers of all races and classes can mingle safely while enjoying a variety of recreations By coming together in these relaxed settings different groups become comfortable with each other thereby strengthening their communities and the democratic fabric of society But just the opposite happens when by design or in ignorance parks are made inhospitable to certain groups of people This pathfinding book argues that cultural diversity should be a key goal in designing and maintaining urban parks Using case studies of New York City's Prospect Park Orchard Beach in Pelham Bay Park and Jacob Riis Park in the Gateway National Recreation Area as well as New York's Ellis Island Bridge Proposal and Philadelphia's Independence National Historical Park the authors identify specific ways to promote maintain and manage cultural diversity in urban parks They also uncover the factors that can limit park use including historical interpretive materials that ignore the contributions of different ethnic groups high entrance or access fees park usage rules that restrict ethnic activities and park restorations that focus only on historical or aesthetic values With the wealth of data in this book urban planners park professionals and all concerned citizens will have the tools to create and maintain public parks that serve the needs and interests of all the public Book Review: Rethinking Urban Parks: Public Space and Cultural Diversity. Mitchell, 2006 Rethinking Urban Green Spaces Cecil Konijnendijk, 2024-02-12 Proposing and demonstrating the ways in which we need to rethink urban green spaces as cities societies and environments evolve renowned scholar Cecil C Konijnendijk explores urban green spaces as essential parts of cities Chapters offer a comprehensive look at how their roles have changed over time and will continue to do so moving from their conventional purpose as areas for recreation to become spaces contributing to climate adaptation biodiversity conservation and economic development Heritage in Action

Helaine Silverman, Emma Waterton, Steve Watson, 2016-11-10 In this textbook we see heritage in action in indigenous and vernacular communities in urban development and regeneration schemes in expressions of community in acts of nostalgia and memorialization and counteracts of forgetting in museums and other spaces of representation in tourism in the offices of those making public policy and in the politics of identity and claims toward cultural property Whether renowned or local tangible or intangible the entire heritage enterprise at whatever scale is by now inextricably embedded in value The global context requires a sanguine approach to heritage in which the so called critical stance is not just theorized in a rarefied sphere of scholarly lexical gymnastics but practically engaged and seen to be doing things in the world

Fourth Places Patricia Aelbrecht, 2022-08-26 This book challenges current views that public life is in decline and that contemporary urban design trends reliant on privatisation control events and thematic designs are to be blamed Drawing on detailed and extensive analysis of a case study that illustrates well such urban design trends it shows that informal social life and interaction occur more than its necessary in new master planned environments and new designed public settings whether public or private owned and or managed Furthermore it reveals the existence of a new category of informal public social settings which it calls fourth places because of their close relationship to Oldenburg's third places in terms of social and behavioural characteristics radical departure from the routines of home and work inclusivity and social comfort but distinct in terms of activities locations and spatial conditions being characterised by spatial temporal and managerial in betweenness i.e. indeterminacy in form function and times and a great sense of publicness The acceptance of these findings problematises well established urban design theories about master planning expands existing social theories about the optimal conditions for public social life by empirically and spatially elaborating on them and redefines several spatial concepts for designing public space in relation to the specific dynamics of informal social interaction More importantly it brings optimism to urban design practice offering new insights into designing more lively and inclusive public spaces Academic research of SSaH 2015 group of authors, 2015-12-28 International Academic Conference on Social Sciences and Humanities in Prague 2015 NY sAC SSaH 2015 in Prague Wednesday Thursday December 30 31 2015

Culture, Participation and Policy in the Municipal Public Park Abigail Gilmore, 2024-01-12 This book concerns the values and practices of participation in municipal public parks and the connections they have with cultural policy urbanism and social life Adopting a critical cultural policy lens it identifies the park as a mundane but extraordinarily treasured place for the production and exchange of cultural values regulation resistance and the practising of citizenship Drawing on extensive mixed methods research on everyday participation in diverse local cultural ecosystems in England and Scotland the book examines the social lives of parks and their users and the important public values that are generated through their common stewardship and usership It presents case studies of parks and co located museums as cultural public spheres which promote both commoning and commodification These are contextualized by histories of municipal parkmaking from the nineteenth century to the present and related to the making of local government and to other civic and cultural institutions The book highlights contemporary issues of austerity marketisation and de municipalisation within local government in the context of urban development It positions the public park as fundamental to democratic cultural governance and makes the case for the primacy of public trust ownership and park equity in safeguarding the right to the city

Chasing World-Class Urbanism Jacob Lederman, 2020-07-14 Questions increasingly dominant urban planning orthodoxies and whether they truly serve everyday city dwellers What makes some cities world class Increasingly that designation reflects the use of a toolkit of urban planning practices and policies that circulates around the globe These strategies establishing creative districts dedicated to technology and design greening the streets reinventing historic districts as tourist draws were deployed to build a globally competitive Buenos Aires after its devastating 2001 economic crisis In this richly drawn account Jacob Lederman explores what those efforts teach us about fast evolving changes in city planning practices and why so many local officials chase a nearly identical vision of world class urbanism Lederman explores the influence of Northern nongovernmental organizations and multilateral agencies on a prominent city of the global South Using empirical data keen observations and interviews with people ranging from urban planners to street vendors he explores how transnational best practices actually affect the lives of city dwellers His research also documents the forms of resistance enacted by everyday residents and the tendency of local institutions and social relations to undermine the top down plans of officials Most important Lederman highlights the paradoxes of world class urbanism for instance while the priorities identified by international agencies are expressed through nonmarket values such as sustainability inclusion and livability local officials often use market centric solutions to pursue them Further despite the progressive rhetoric used to describe urban planning goals in most cases their result has been greater social economic and geographic stratification Chasing World Class Urbanism is a much needed guide to the intersections of culture ideology and the realities of twenty first century life in a major Latin American city one that illuminates the tension between technocratic aspirations and lived experience

Preparing Informal Science Educators

Patricia G Patrick, 2017-01-16 This book provides a diverse look at various aspects of preparing informal science educators Much has been published about the importance of preparing formal classroom educators but little has been written about the importance need and best practices for training professionals who teach in aquariums camps parks museums etc The reader will find that as a collective the chapters of the book are well related and paint a clear picture that there are varying ways to approach informal educator preparation but all are important The volume is divided into five topics Defining Informal Science Education Professional Development Designing Programs Zone of Reflexivity The Space Between Formal and Informal Educators and Public Communication The authors have written chapters for practitioners researchers and those who are interested in assessment and evaluation formal and informal educator preparation gender equity place based education professional development program design reflective practice and science communication Readers will draw meaning and usefulness from the array of professional perspectives and be stimulated to begin a quest to scaffold programs and professional development around the frameworks described in this book

Rights to Public Space Sig

Langeegger, 2016-12-21 This book examines the roles that public space plays in gentrification Considering both cultural norms of public behavior and the municipal regulation of behavior in public it shows how commonplace acts in everyday public spaces like sidewalks streets and parks work to establish neighborhood legitimacy for newcomers while delegitimizing once authentic public practices of long timers With evidence drawn from the formerly Latino neighborhood of Highland in Denver

Colorado this ethnographic study demonstrates how the regulation of public space plays a pivotal role in neighborhood change First there is often a profound disharmony between how people from different cultural complexes interpret and sanction behavior in everyday public spaces Second because regulations codes urban design and enforcement protocols are deliberately changed commonplace activities longtime neighborhood residents feel they have a right to do along sidewalks and streets and within their neighborhood parks sometimes unexpectedly misalign with what is actually possible or legal to do in these publicly accessible spaces

Modernism in the Green Julia E. Daniel, Margaret Konkol, 2020-04-15 Modernism in the Green traces a trans Atlantic modernist fascination with the creation use and representation of the modern green From the verdant public commons in the heart of cities to the lookout points on mountains in national parks planned green spaces serve as felicitous stages for the performance of modernism In its focus on designed and public green zones Modernism in the Green offers a new perspective on modernism s overlapping investments in the arts politics urbanism race class gender and the nature culture divide This collection of essays is the first to explore the prominent and diverse ways greens materialize in modern literature and culture along with the manner in which modernists represented them This volume presents the idea of the green as a point of exploration as our contributors analyze social organic spaces ranging from public parks to roadways and refuse piles Like the term green one that evokes both more than human natural zones and crafted public meeting places these chapters uncover the social and spatial intersection of nature and culture in the very architecture of parks gardens buildings highways and dumps This book argues that such greens facilitate modernists exploration of how nature can manifest in an era of increasing urbanization and mechanization and what identities and communities the green now enables or prevents

Spatializing Culture Setha Low, 2016-08-12 This book demonstrates the value of ethnographic theory and methods in understanding space and place and considers how ethnographically based spatial analyses can yield insight into prejudices inequalities and social exclusion as well as offering people the means for understanding the places where they live work shop and socialize In developing the concept of spatializing culture Setha Low draws on over twenty years of research to examine social production social construction embodied discursive emotive and affective as well as translocal approaches A global range of fieldwork examples are employed throughout the text to highlight not just the theoretical development of the idea of spatializing culture but how it can be used in undertaking ethnographies of space and place The volume will be valuable for students and scholars from a number of disciplines who are interested in the study of culture through the lens of space and place

Introduction to Ethnographic Research Kimberly Kirner, Jan Mills, 2019-09-05 Introduction to Ethnographic Research streamlines learning the process of research speaks to the student at a foundational level and helps the reader conquer the apprehensions of mastering research methods Written in a conversational style authors Kimberly Kirner and Jan Mills use a focus on scaffolding across the chapters to help the student transition from step to step in the research process Case studies and first hand accounts are also featured in each chapter allowing the student to see the early steps successes and at times failures that accomplished researchers experienced in their past These real examples further encourage the student that even the best researchers failed along the way and more importantly learned from those mistakes This text is designed to be used as a stand alone book but is enhanced by the use with the supplemental workbook Doing Ethnographic Research by the same authors This text has call outs to the supplemental text which allow for application and practice of the material learned

Architecture, Space and Memory of Resurrection in Northern Ireland Mohamed Gamal Abdelmonem, Gehan Selim, 2019-04-25 Northern Ireland has a complex urbanism with multilayered socio spatial politics In this environment issues of communication self representation and expression of identity are central to the experience of urban space and architecture where the dichotomy of division and shared living are spatially exercised in everyday life Unlike other studies in the area this book focuses on the everyday experiences of local communities in both public and private spheres issues of shareness challenging conventional approaches to divided cities The book aims to layer its narratives of architectural and social developments as an urban experience in post conflict settings over the past two decades

Everyday Life in the Segmented City Camilla Perrone, Gabriele Manella, Lorenzo Tripodi, 2011-11-10 The conference Everyday Life in the Segmented City held in July 2010 Florence gathered a multiplicity of approaches and points of view dealing with issues of global urbanization This title contains a selection of the papers presented at the conference

Public Space Reader Miodrag Mitrašinić, Vikas Mehta, 2021-03-30 Recent global appropriations of public spaces through urban activism public uprising and political protest have brought back democratic values beliefs and practices that have been historically associated with cities Given the aggressive commodification of public resources public space is critically important due to its capacity to enable forms of public discourse and social practice which are fundamental for the well being of democratic societies Public Space Reader brings together public space scholarship by a cross disciplinary group of academics and specialists whose essays consider fundamental questions What is public space and how does it manifest larger cultural social and political processes How are public spaces designed socially and materially produced and managed How does this impact the nature and character of public experience What roles does it play in the struggles for the just city and the Right to The City What critical participatory approaches can be employed to create inclusive public spaces that respond to the diverse needs desires and aspirations of individuals and communities alike What are the critical global and comparative perspectives on public space that can enable further scholarly and professional work And what are the futures of public space in the face of global pandemics such as COVID 19 The readers of this volume will be rewarded with an impressive array of perspectives that are bound to expand critical understanding of public space

Qualitative Housing Analysis Paul J. Maginn, Matthew Tonts, Susan M. Great City Parks Alan Tate, 2015-03-05 Great City Parks is a celebration of some of the finest achievements of landscape architecture in the public realm. It is a comparative study of thirty significant public parks in major cities across Western Europe and North America. Collectively they give a clear picture of why parks have been created, how they have been designed, how they are managed, and what plans are being made for them at the beginning of the twenty-first century. Based on unique research including extensive site visits and interviews with the managing organisations, this book is illustrated throughout with clear plans and photographs, with this new edition featuring full colour throughout. Tate updates his seminal 2001 work with 10 additional parks, including The High Line in NYC, Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, and Westergasfabriek Amsterdam. All the previous city parks have also been updated and revised to reflect current usage and management. This book reflects a belief that well-planned, well-designed, and well-managed parks and park systems will continue to make major contributions to the quality of life in an increasingly urbanized world.

Intercultural Urbanism Dean Saitta, 2020-07-23 Cities today are paradoxical. They are engines of innovation and opportunity, but they are also plagued by significant income inequality and segregation by ethnicity, race, and class. These inequalities and segregations are often reinforced by the urban built environment, the planning of space, and the design of architecture. This condition threatens attainment of wider social and economic prosperity. In this innovative new study, Dean Saitta explores questions of urban sustainability by taking an intercultural, trans-historical approach to city planning. Saitta uses a largely untapped body of knowledge—the archaeology of cities in the ancient world—to generate ideas about how public space, housing, and civic architecture might be better designed to promote inclusion and community while also making our cities more environmentally sustainable. By integrating this knowledge with knowledge generated by evolutionary studies and urban ethnography, including a detailed look at Denver, Colorado—one of America's most desirable and fastest-growing destination cities but one that is also experiencing significant spatial segregation and gentrification—Saitta's book offers an invaluable new perspective for urban studies scholars and urban planning professionals.
