What did the Sarcophagus of Symmachus look like? Niels Hannestad, 2019-10-11 This book concerns the chronology of Roman mythological sarcophagi The traditional chronology assumes a peak in production during the reign of Gallienus AD 259-268 that fades away in the reign of Constantine This chronology has some obvious flaws The supposed peak under the reign of Gallienus when the empire was falling apart can only be described as a mirage Some very fine sarcophagi were indeed produced in this period but the number is very limited With the reign of Constantine AD 306-337 came wealth and the so-called villa boom that also revived sculpture in the round At that time it is believed that production of pagan sarcophagi had ceased to be replaced by Christian sarcophagi This raises a very simple question however how were pagans buried No doubt production of pagan sarcophagi continued beyond the turn of the century and Symmachus who died in AD 402 was buried in such a sarcophagus
