The Afterlife of Greek and Roman Sculpture Troels Myrup Kristensen, Lea Margaret Stirling, 2016-06-27 A landmark volume on the uses and reuses of statuary in late antiquity

Greek & Roman Sculpture Adolf Furtwängler, Heinrich Ludwig Ulrichs, 1914 Roman Sculpture from the North West Midlands Martin Henig, Graham Webster, 2004-08-12 This is the first comprehensive catalogue of the sculpture from this region of Roman Britain including the first proper record of the sculpture from Wroxeter The sculptures all in local sandstone were carved locally and provide an index of Romanisation in the far north west of the Roman Empire at the Fortress of Legio II Adivtrix and then Legio XX Valeria Victrix at Devra Chester and at the Fortress and subsequently the civil town of the Cornovii at Viroconium Wroxeter The sculpture from Letcetum Wall Staffs is also considered The works range in quality from highly accomplished and decorative altars and tombstones to rather ham fisted efforts which hint that it was not always possible to attract sculptors to these relatively remote places Such factors are discussed in an extended introduction The Afterlife of Greek and Roman Sculpture Lea Stirling, Troels Myrup Kristensen, 2016-06-27 For centuries statuary d cor was a main characteristic of any city sanctuary or villa in the Roman world However from the third century CE onward the prevalence of statues across the Roman Empire declined dramatically By the end of the sixth century statues were no longer a defining characteristic of the imperial landscape Further changing religious practices cast pagan sculpture in a threatening light Statuary production ceased and extant statuary was either harvested for use in construction or abandoned in place The Afterlife of Greek and Roman Sculpture is the first volume to approach systematically the antique destruction and reuse of statuary investigating key responses to statuary across most regions of the Roman world The volume opens with a discussion of the complexity of the archaeological record and a preliminary chronology of the fate of statues across both the eastern and western imperial landscape Contributors to the volume address questions of definition identification and interpretation for particular treatments of statuary including metal statuary and the systematic reuse of villa materials They consider factors such as earthquake damage late antique views on civic versus private uses of art urban construction and deeper causes underlying the end of the statuary habit including a new explanation for the decline of imperial portraiture The themes explored resonate with contemporary concerns related to urban decline as evident in post industrial cities and the destruction of cultural heritage such as in the Middle East

Statues in Roman Society Peter Stewart, 2004-02-06 Statues are among the most familiar remnants of classical art Yet their prominence in ancient society is often ignored In the Roman world statues were ubiquitous Whether they were displayed as public honours or memorials collected as works of art dedicated to deities venerated as gods or violated as symbols of a defeated political regime they were recognized individually and collectively as objects of enormous significance By analysing ancient texts and images Statues in Roman Society unravels the web of associations which surrounded Roman statues Addressing all categories of statuary together for the first time it illuminates them in ancient terms explaining expectations of what statues were or ought to be and describing the Romans uneasy relationship with the other population in their midst

The Ceremonial Sculptures of the Roman Gods Brian Madigan, 2012-11-23 The well known formats of Roman sculpture are the ones best preserved but inevitably limited to those designed to be permanent and immobile A significant component of the Roman visual world missing from this record are those images which depict or stand in for the Roman gods during ceremonies Statuary of this type is in some measure mobile designed specifically to be carried about in processions brought out for public viewing at throne ceremonies or participate in divine banquets In addition to defining the characteristics of these ceremonial sculptures this study also addresses their performative qualities where and how they appeared who was responsible for handling them with what conventions of decorum and with what response from the audience
