Romance And The Cinema:

Love and Marriage Across Social Classes in American Cinema Stephen Sharot, 2016-11-18 This book is the first comprehensive and systematic study of cross class romance films throughout the history of American cinema. It provides vivid discussions of these romantic films, analyses their normative patterns and thematic concerns, traces how they were shaped by inequalities of gender and class in American society and explains why they were especially popular from World War I through the roaring twenties and the Great Depression. In the vast majority of cross class romance films, the female is poor or from the working class, the male is wealthy or from the upper class, and the romance ends successfully in marriage or the promise of marriage.

American Postfeminist Cinema Michele Schreiber, 2014-03-11 In light of their tremendous gains in the political and professional sphere and their ever-expanding options, why is it that most contemporary American films aimed at women still focus almost exclusively on their pursuit of a heterosexual romantic relationship? American Postfeminist Cinema explores this question and is the first book to examine the symbiotic relationship between heterosexual romance and postfeminist culture. The book argues that since 1980, postfeminism's most salient tensions and anxieties have been reflected and negotiated in the American romance film. Case studies of a broad range of Hollywood and independent films reveal how the postfeminist romance cycle is intertwined with contemporary women's ambivalence and broader cultural anxieties about women's changing social and political status.

Popular Ethiopian Cinema Michael W. Thomas, 2022-09-08 This book shines much needed light on the history, structures, and films of the Amharic film industry in Ethiopia. Focusing on the rise of the industry from 2002 until today and embedded in archival, ethnographic, and textual research methods, this book offers a sustained and detailed appreciation of Amharic language cinema. Michael Thomas considers fiker (love) as an organising principle in national Ethiopian culture and, by extension, Amharic cinema. Placing fiker as central to understanding Amharic film genres also illuminates the continuous negotiations at play between romantic, familial, patriotic, and spiritual notions of love in these films. Thomas considers the production and exhibition of films in Ethiopia, charting fluctuations and continuities between the past and the present. Having done so, he offers detailed textual readings of films, identifying important junctures in the industry's development and the emergence of new genres. The findings of the book detail the affective characteristics that delineate most Amharic genres and the role of culturally specific concepts such as fiker in maintaining the relevance of commercial cinema's reliance on domestic audiences.
