Men Of Ironthe Story Of Cammell Laird Shipbuilders 18281991:

Iron Shipbuilding on the Thames, 1832-1915 A.J. Arnold,2017-11-22 This title was first published in 2000 Little better documented than King Arthur or Robin Hood complained one historian in 1998 describing the lack of information on Thames shipbuilding This study of iron shipbuilding on the capital s river fills this noticeable gap A J Arnold examines the initial domination of the iron shipbuilding trade by Thames firms from the launch of the first iron vessel on the river in 1832 to the end of serious Thames side shipbuilding in 1915 For the first time the factors that caused the industry s demise are explored fully together with an analysis of the effect it had on its locality Extending existing series of data the book includes information on annual shipbuilding tonnage and the number of vessels constructed and further looks at tonnage built for foreign citizens companies and navies and for the British Admiralty This broader and deeper statistical survey is supplemented with less systematic documentation such as memorabilia and business records to arrive at the most complete picture yet of a once pre eminent British industry A J Arnold is Professor of Accounting and Business History at the University of Essex

Shipbuilding in the United Kingdom in the Nineteenth Century Simon Ville,2017-10-18 This volume tackles the history of Shipbuilding in the United Kingdom in the Nineteenth Century by breaking it down into six regions Northeast England Southeast England Southwest England Northwest England Scotland and Ireland The intent is to determine the different economic social and geographic factors that contribute to the varied rates of rise and decline of Shipbuilding across the United Kingdom rather than view the nation s shipbuilding history as a singular narrative which risks omitting the complexity of each region Each region has been ascribed an author and each author seeks to establish the quantitative and qualitative nature of output in their region assessing individual factors of production the character of the enterprises and the nature of the market

Shipbuilding in the United Kingdom Hugh Murphy,2020-12-28 Shipbuilding in the United Kingdom provides a systematic historical account of the British Shipbuilders Corporation first looking at this major industry under private enterprise then under state control and finally back in private hands The chapters trace the evolution of public policy regarding shipbuilding ship repair and large marine engine building through the tenures of radically different Labour and Conservative governments and through the response of the board of the British Shipbuilders Corporation trade unions and local management also The book benefits from comprehensive archival research and interviews from the 1990s with leading players in the industry as well as politicians shipbuilders trade union leaders and senior civil servants This authoritative monograph is a valuable resource for advanced students and researchers across the fields of business history economic history industrial history labour history maritime history and British history

Crossing the Bar Anthony Slaven,Hugh Murphy,2017-10-18 This book is a collection of sixty interviews with key figures in British shipbuilding ship repair and marine engine building industries across the United Kingdom plus government and civil service members in the sector from the 1960s to the 1980s The aim of the project is to understand the economic social and political environment of the shipping industry from the perspective of those who worked in it The interviews place the twentieth century decline of British shipbuilding into a firm context The topics covered include international competition a recurring pertinent theme labour difficulties industry modernisation the attitude of shipowners the strong belief in traditional methods which kept many of those in the industry from recognising the cheaper faster and better quality work taking place overseas and leaving Britain behind ship production and production control the postwar boom shipyard overcrowding the decline of the domestic industry in favour of the international marketing weaknesses trade disputes and trade unions and nationalisation and privatisation concerns Opinions and viewpoints often conflict particularly between the perspectives of those working within the industry and the civil servants working outside of it but the interviews are presented as a unit and the reader is encouraged to draw their own conclusion The result is a unique historical archive that offers a multitude of firsthand perspectives on the British shipping decline open to interpretation by historians and future researchers It includes a preface introduction and select bibliography The interviews are grouped together by location and role

In the Shadow of the Alabama Renata Eley Long, 2015-06-15 This book looks at an allegation of betrayal made against a young Foreign Office clerk Victor Buckley who it was claimed leaked privileged information to agents of the southern States during the American Civil War As a consequence the CSS Alabama narrowly escaped seizure by the British government and proceeded to wage war on American shipping Victor Buckley s background is examined against the hitherto erroneous belief that he was an insignificant member of the foreign office staff The American minister Charles Francis Adams oversees a network of spies endeavoring to prove contravention of The Foreign Enlistment Act The South s agents Captain James D Bulloch and Major Caleb Huse are the prime targets and a battle of wits ensues as Bulloch oversees construction of his ships on Merseyside A member of a prominent City family offers to enlist the help of a relative who he claims holds a confidential position in the Foreign Office The Confederate agents are soon receiving information about the status of Anglo American diplomacy and are able to outwit the Union spies and dispatch arms and supplies to the South Their coup d tat is achieved with the arrival of a message that hurries the Confederate s most formidable warship out of British waters After the escape of the Alabama the government moves to curtail Bulloch s operations When the war ends in 1865 investigations begin into the circumstances surrounding the Alabama s departure As America demands reparation evidence apparently incriminating Victor Buckley is acquired but before the claim reaches its hearing in Geneva diplomatic moves some involving Anglo American Masonic influence result in a treaty and ensure that no allegation is made against any individual member of foreign office staff Queen Victoria anxious to see the Alabama claims settled is spared embarrassment A scandal erupts in the foreign office in 1878 as a freelance clerk Charles Marvin leaks sensitive information to the press and subsequently writes of his experiences revealing much of the ethos of the office pertinent to Buckley s story The writer Arthur Conan Doyle becomes fascinated by Anglo American diplomacy and the Alabama question and soon after joining a London gentlemen s club where Buckley s alleged contact is a member writes a Sherlock Holmes story involving a Foreign Office clerk's apparent betrayal. Coincidentally Conan Doyle has been acquainted with Buckley's associate some years earlier and he soon makes a thinly veiled appearance in a fictional work by England's most famous crime writer. Iron Shipbuilding on the Thames, 1832-1915 Tony Arnold, 2000 For the first time the factors that caused this pre eminent British industry's demise are explored fully together with an analysis of the effect that it had on its locality. British Shipbuilding and the State Since 1918 Lewis Johnman, Hugh Murphy, 2002 This analysis of 20th century shipbuilding blends the records of central Government with those of the Shipbuilding Employers Federation and Shipbuilding Conference as well as those from individual yards, technical societies and the trade press.
