Resnick, Roger Säljö, Clotilde Pontecorvo, Barbara Burge, 2013-06-29 Not long ago projections of how office technologies would revolutionize the production of documents in a high tech future carried many promises The paperless office and the seamless and problem free sharing of texts and other work materials among co workers were just around the corner we were told To anyone who has been involved in putting together a volume of the present kind such forecasts will be met with considerable skepticism if not outright distrust The diskette the email the fax the net and all the other forms of communication that are now around are powerful assets but they do not in any way reduce the flow of paper or the complexity of coordinating activities involved in producing an artifact such as a book Instead the reverse seems to be true Obviously the use of such tools requires considerable skill at the center of coordination to borrow an expression from a chapter in this volume As editors we have been fortunate to have Ms Lotta Strand Linköping University at the center of the distributed activity that producing this volume has required over the last few years With her considerable skill and patience Ms Strand and her work provide a powerful illustration of the main thrust of most of the chapters in this volume Practice is a coordination of thinking and action and many things had to be kept in mind during the production of this volume Public Relations Theory Carl H. Botan, 2017-10-03 Beginning with the basic premise that public relations can best be understood as a specialized type of communication the contributors to this volume establish public relations as a vital and viable realm for communication research and theory development Through the application of communication theories they attempt to explain and predict public relations practices and then use these practices to develop communication theories Their discussions fall into three distinct categories metatheory theory and examples of applications of theories An ideal volume for professionals and students in communication journalism and related fields The Handbook of Language Variation and Change J. K. Chambers, Peter Trudgill, Natalie Schilling, 2008-04-15 The Handbook of Language Variation and Change written by a distinguished international roster of contributors reflects the vitality and growth of the discipline in its multifaceted pursuits It is a convenient hand held repository of the essential knowledge about the study of language variation and change Written by internationally recognized experts in the field Reflects the vitality and growth of the discipline Discusses the ideas that drive the field and is illustrated with empirical studies Includes explanatory introductions which set out the boundaries of the field and place each of the chapters into perspective Contexts of Accommodation Howard Giles, Justine Coupland, Nikolas Coupland, 1991-09-27 In Contexts of Accommodation accommodation theory is presented as a basis for sociolinguistic explanation and it is the applied perspective that predominates this edited collection The book seeks to demonstrate how the core concepts and relationships invoked by accommodation theory are available for addressing altogether pragmatic concerns
