Multi-Sourced Equivalent Norms in International Law Tomer Broude, Yuval Shany, 2011-03-21 Recent decades have witnessed an impressive process of normative development in international law. Numerous new treaties have been concluded at global and regional levels establishing far reaching international legal and regulatory regimes in important areas such as human rights, international trade, environmental protection, criminal law, intellectual property and more. New political and judicial institutions have been established to develop, apply and adjudicate these rules. This trend has been accompanied by the growing consolidation of treaty norms into international custom and increased references to international law in domestic settings. As a result of these developments, international relations have now reached an unprecedented level of normative density and intensity, but they have also given rise to the phenomenon of fragmentation. The debate over the fragmentation of international law has largely focused on conflicts of norms and conflicts of authority. However, the same developments that have given rise to greater conflict and contradiction in international law have also produced a growing amount of normative equivalence between rules in different fields of international law. New treaty rules often echo existing international customary norms. Regional arrangements reinforce undertakings that already exist at the global level and common concerns and solutions appear in many international legal fields. This book focuses on such instances of normative parallelism, developing the concept of multisourced equivalent norms in international law with contributions by leading international law experts exploring the legal and political implications of the concept in a variety of contexts that span the full spectrum of international legal norms and institutions. By concentrating on situations governed by a multitude of similar norms, the book emphasizes the importance of legal contexts and institutional settings to international law interpretation and application.

Many Paths Eugene Hillman, 2008-06-01. In Many Paths, Eugene Hillman, a pioneer in the area of interreligious dialogue and Catholic thought, argues that the wider ecumenism to which Christians were summoned by Vatican II may prove to be the most radically demanding of the Council's many calls. It requires a reexamination of christology, of ecclesiology, of missiology and a coming to terms with the reality of religious pluralism. By exploring religion's historico-cultural dimensions, examining the Church's tradition and practice vis-à-vis other cultures and religions and explicating the challenges of a post-Vatican II ministry, Many Paths makes a vital contribution to the development of interreligious dialogue.

Race, Racism and Social Work Lavalette, Michael, Penketh, Laura, 2013-12-30. Without a doubt, structural and institutionalised racism is still present in Britain and Europe, a factor that social work education and training has been slow to acknowledge. In this timely new book, Lavalette and Penketh reveal that racism towards Britain's minority ethnic groups has undergone a process of change They affirm the importance of social work to address issues of race and racism in education and training by presenting a critical review of a this demanding aspect of social work practice Original in its approach and with diverse perspectives from key practitioners in the field the authors examine contemporary anti racism including racism towards Eastern European migrants Roma people and asylum seekers It also considers the implications of contemporary racism for current practice This is essential reading for anyone academically or professionally interested in social work and the developments in this field of study post 9 11
