Speaking of Violence Sara Cobb PhD,2013-05-27 In the context of ongoing or historical violence people tell stories about what happened who did what to whom and why Yet frequently the speaking of violence reproduces the social fractures and delegitimizes again those that struggle against their own marginalization This speaking of violence deepens conflict and all too often perpetuates cycles of violence Alternatively sometimes people do not speak of the violence and it is erased buried with the bodies that bear it witness This reduces the capacity of the public to address issues emerging in the aftermath of violence and repression This book takes the notion of narrative as foundational to conflict analysis and resolution Distinct from conflict theories that rely on accounts of attitudes or perceptions in the heads of individuals this narrative perspective presumes that meaning structured and organized as narrative processes is the location for both analysis of conflict as well as intervention But meaning is political in that not all stories can be told or the way they are told delegitimizes and erases others Thus the critical narrative theory outlined in this book offers a normative approach to narrative assessment and intervention It provides a way of evaluating narrative and designing better formed stories better in that they are generative of sustainable relations creating legitimacy for all parties In so doing they function aesthetically and ethically to support the emergence of new histories and new futures Indeed critical narrative theory offers a new lens for enabling people to speak of violence in ways that undermine the intractability of conflict

Sustaining Depth and Meaning in School Leadership Keeping Your Head concerns the emotional and psychological experience of school leadership in particular the felt experience of life as a headteacher It describes the pressures and rewards of the role together with some of the ways that school leaders successfully sustain and develop themselves and their teams in what has become an increasingly complex challenging and highly accountable role This book explores the personal experience of leading schools Part I provides an overview and analysis of current and historical trends in school leadership and offers some theoretical frameworks for making sense of these Part II then offers psychodynamic approaches to supporting and developing school leaders and the impact that trends in executive education continue to have on this Part III looks at approaches to school leadership development more generally including team development influences from the business world the growth of mentoring and coaching as a leadership intervention the design and evaluation of leadership development programmes and a case study on whole system development The final word is given to ten serving headteachers and deputies and their leadership journeys This range of chapters concepts and perspectives will support school leaders to maintain an emotional equilibrium while navigating the multilayered tightrope of intrapsychic interpersonal and organizational dynamics inherent in school life Rooted in Jackson and Berkeley's belief that school leaders are likely to be at their best when they find their own unique and authentic way of taking up their leadership role this book is an accessible supportive and developmental contribution for all those involved in education leadership
