Expressions: an Art Educational Voyage Dr. Lonnie G. Ford, 2009-08-28 Several years ago I enrolled in a graduate course on educational research that focused on closing the achievement gap for African American children. The course was structured to explore issues, causes, and concerns for the achievement gap. Studying different educational outcomes, reading books and articles, we regularly shared our insights about some leading causes. Most importantly, we were instructed to stay within our subject areas when finding any contributions to that gap. In my attempt to complete the assignment of researching possible causes in my discipline of art education, I found myself frustrated and angry. Why? There were no research studies exploring how art education was a part of the equation leading to solutions in closing the gap. In addition, there were no basic instructions or curricula designed to make connections to the art student to develop critical thinking skills or to incorporate the use of students' life experiences for learning. Furthermore, I felt that art education was used as a testing ground in urban schools like the Chicago Public Schools, using Teaching Artists to teach art with no teaching certification or teaching qualifications. Booth 2003. The purpose of this approach was to use their knowledge and practices of art to influence change in students' learning. This kind of experiment branched away from any real effort to integrate art education and truly recognize it as a viable core subject area. While conducting research for the course, I found that researchers defined the achievement gap between white and African American students solely in terms of the four core subjects of math, science, social studies, and language arts, with no attention given to art education. e.g. Berlak 2001, Honig 2001, Limn 2000, Sacks 2000. A study by the National Black Caucus, entitled "Closing the Achievement Gap: Improving Education Outcomes for African American Children," November 2001, reports: "Make improving the literacy skills of students a top priority. Students who cannot read will experience little success in school. Reading is the key to academic achievement in every subject, ranging from math and English to science and history. We must put reading first by finding initiatives and programs designed to strengthen the reading skills of students, particularly low-performing students." Again, there was no mention of art. As both an African American and an art teacher, I found it very disturbing that the recommendations of many national and local art educational organizations and schools failed to address the importance of teaching art education in African American urban school settings. My dissertation research ultimately arose from this concern.

Issues in Art and Design Teaching Nicholas Addison, Lesley Burgess, 2003-12-08 This book draws together a range of issues in the teaching of art and design. Building on their learning about the teaching of art and design on ITT courses, the reader is encouraged to consider and reflect to improve their judgements.

Women as Leaders in Education Jennifer L. Martin, 2011-09-22 This up-to-date candid examination of women's careers in education and leadership in education describes the pitfalls, triumphs, and future promise of female leaders in education. Overall, education is a field still dominated by women, yet women do not typically pursue or attain leadership positions at the administrative level. Research has revealed some of the reasons for this: women still experience gender discrimination in education careers, experience higher attrition rates, and have slower career mobility than do men Additionally women in education are apparently less valued and their performance is more critically evaluated as in other fields This insightful text shows the gender based inequities and discrimination women face when aiming for leadership positions in education and lays out a plan to bring success to this level of the field that is still male dominated Women as Leaders in Education Succeeding Despite Inequity Discrimination and Other Challenges is the result of a team of leading feminist educators and scholars It delves into feminist women s leadership in education from kindergarten to graduate school This two volume work assesses the historical and current political landscape with regard to women hitting a glass ceiling issues of social justice and the unique challenges women face in educational leadership as well as the new field of teacher leadership
