Theology and the Body Stephen Garner, 2011-12-31 The human body is the primary lens through which we view encounter and engage the world around us It is no surprise then to find a wide range of theological reflection upon the human body from those that affirm the human body as something very good through to other more negative views where the body is something to be marginalised or escaped from The body and theology also meet in conversations over body mind and soul gender disability eschatology race and culture sexuality Christology and medicine and technology to name but a few Each of the authors in this volume pick up the theme of embodiment as the lens through which they look at an aspect of theology and body providing an engaging window onto some of these discussions Crossing Over

Frank Timmermans, 2005 Crossing Over promotes reflection on the socio ethical and policy and regulatory aspects of genomics and biotechnology This collection of essays illuminates the common themes surrounding this hotly contested issue and considers the politics public perception ethics media representations and future possibilities of genomics A Moral Theory of Sports Richard J. Severson, 2019-06-12 The breadth of our moral experience is more extensive than has been believed over the past several millennia There is more to morality than being honest and good or aspiring to universal principles In fact in many ways the morality of our distant ancestors bears a remarkable resemblance to the moral experiences of modern athletes In A Moral Theory of Sports ethicist Richard J Severson brings together stories from today's sports world and the moral practices of hunter gatherers to shed new light on both sports and morality Guided by anthropologists biologists neuroscientists and others Severson discusses what the moral life actually looked like for hunter gatherer bands in the late Pleistocene epoch and argues that the championing of group success that was the epitome of their morality is the epitome of modern sports as well With fascinating analogies and anecdotes from football basketball tennis cycling and more A Moral Theory of Sports offers a unique interpretation of human nature and our love affair with sports

Defending the Genetic Supermarket Colin Gavaghan, 2007-03-12 The controversial topic of the technology of Pre implantation Genetic Diagnosis and the muddled approach to this subject adopted by the UK Parliament is explored in detail in this volume The author takes the viewpoint that the HFEA has taken insufficient notice to date of certain core ethical principles and makes the case for a much more ethically consistent and humane system than has been managed so far

Arguing that many of the fears and objections levied against Robert Nozick's notion of the Genetic Supermarket by disability activists, Christian bioethicists and radical feminists amongst others are internally inconsistent, philosophically unsound or merely highly improbable, the author considers a number of individual policy decisions of the HFEA and addresses such questions as: Can a case be made out for state involvement in such decisions? Who stands to be harmed by a supermarket model? Are any ethical principles or societal interests threatened by it? This book is an essential resource for law students of all levels and professionals working within or interested in medical and healthcare law and medical genetics.

Representations of Masculinity in Literature and Film Sara Martín, 2020-09-11 How are men represented on the printed page, the stage and the screen? What do these representations say about masculinity in the past, the present and the future? The twelve essays in this volume explore the different ways in which men and masculinity have been represented from the plays of William Shakespeare to the science fiction of Richard K. Morgan, passing through classic fiction by Emily Brontë and Charles Dickens and popular favourites by Terry Pratchett and Isaac Asimov, without forgetting the Star Wars saga. Collectively, these essays argue that although much has been written about men, it has been done from a perspective that does not see masculinity as a specific feature in need of critical appraisal. Men need to be made aware of how they are represented in order to alter the toxic patriarchal models handed down to them and even break the extant binary gender models. For that, it is important that men distinguish patriarchy from masculinity as is done here and form anti-patriarchal alliances with each other and with women. This book is then an invitation to men's liberation from patriarchy by raising an awareness of its crippling constraints.

Neoliberalism and Technoscience Marja Ylönen, Luigi Pellizzoni, 2016-04-22 This book provides a comprehensive assessment of the connection between processes of neoliberalization and the advancement and transformation of technoscience. Drawing on a range of theoretical insights, it explores a variety of issues including the digital revolution and the rise of immaterial culture, the rationale of psychiatric reforms and biotechnology regulation, discourses of social threats and human enhancement and carbon markets and green energy policies. A rich exploration of the overall logic of technoscientific innovation within late capitalism and the emergence of a novel view of human agency with regard to the social and natural world, this volume reveals the interdependence of technoscience and the neoliberalization of society. Presenting the latest research from a leading team of scholars, Neoliberalism and Technoscience will be of interest to scholars of sociology, politics, geography and science and technology studies.

Biotechnology, Education and Life Politics Pádraig Murphy, 2014-04-24 What should individuals and society do when genetic screening becomes widely available and with its impact on current and future generations still uncertain How can our education systems around the world respond to these developments Reproductive and genetic technologies RGTs are increasingly controversial and political We are entering an era where we can design future humans firstly by genetic screening of undesirable traits or indeed embryos but perhaps later by more radical genetic engineering This has a profound effect on what we see as normal acceptable and responsible This book argues that these urgent and biopolitical issues should be central to how biology is taught as a subject Debate about life itself has always been at the forefront of connected molecular genetic and social personal identity levels and each of these levels requires processes of communication and debate what Anthony Giddens called in passing life politics In this book P draig Murphy opens the term up with examples from field research in schools student responses to educational films exploring the future of RGTs and science studies of strategic biotechnology and the lab practices of genetic screening Life political debate is thoroughly examined and is identified as a way of connecting mainstream education of biology with future generations Biotechnology Education and Life Politics will appeal to post graduates and academics involved with science education science communication communication studies and the sociology of education

Ferocious Minds Damien Broderick, 2005-01-01 Two centuries ago the first Enlightenment failed when its dream of reason smashed into the passions and fury of stubborn humans Without a deep broad understanding of the world the emerging Enlightenment was left floundering its best impulses perverted into the bloody excess of the French Revolution Arguably its idealism and noble goals led directly and shockingly to the 20th century's totalitarian nightmares Now the 21st century is learning anew the Faustian hunger to know everything that can be known But Enlightenment values of reason and tolerance enriched by new knowledge face a complex world no less eager to embrace medieval terrorism and ancient superstitions a world bizarrely denying itself many of the fresh opportunities and insights availed by science Can we find cures for poverty unhappiness ignorance the ruination of the planet aging and perhaps for death itself If so should we Damien Broderick's own ferocious mind invites you to explore today's unexpected treasure house of understanding and provides enticing glimpses of tomorrow's

Playing for Time Geraldine Cousin, 2013-03-31 Playing for time explores connections between theatre time the historical moment and fictional time Geraldine Cousin persuasively argues that a crucial characteristic of contemporary British theatre is its preoccupation with instability and danger and traces images of catastrophe and loss in a wide range of recent plays and productions The diversity of the texts that are examined is a major strength of the book In addition to plays by contemporary dramatists Cousin analyses staged adaptations of novels and productions of plays by Euripides Strindberg and Priestley A key focus is Stephen Daldry's award winning revival of Priestley's An Inspector Calls which is discussed in relation both to other Priestley time plays and to Caryl Churchill's apocalyptic Far Away Lost children are a recurring motif Bryony Lavery's Frozen for example is explored in the context of the Soham murders which took place while the play was in production at the National Theatre whilst three virtually simultaneous

Fiction 1980-2010 Sara Wasson, Emily Alder, 2011-01-01 Gothic fiction's focus on the irrational and supernatural would seem to conflict with science fiction's rational foundations. However, as this novel collection demonstrates, the two categories often intersect in rich and revealing ways. Analyzing a range of works including literature, film, graphic novels, and trading card games from the past three decades through the lens of this hybrid genre, this volume examines their engagement with the era's dramatic changes in communication technology, medical science, and personal and global politics Contours of

Ableism F. Campbell, 2009-09-16 Challenging notions of what constitutes normal and pathological bodies, this ambitious agenda-setting study theoretically reinvigorates disability studies by reconceptualising it as studies of ableism, focusing on the practices and formations of able-bodiedness to uncover what it means to be able rather than disabled Tomorrow's

People Susan Greenfield, 2004-09-30 The book is an exploration of how this century is going to change, not just the way we think but also what we actually think with our own individual minds. How will new technologies transform the way we see the world? At the beginning of the twenty-first century, we may be standing on the brink of a mind make-over far more cataclysmic than anything that has happened before. As we appreciate the dynamism and sensitivity of our brain circuitry, so the prospect of directly tampering with the essence of our individuality becomes a possibility The Myths We Live By Mary

Midgley, 2011-04 Mary Midgley argues in this powerful book that far from being the opposite of science, myth is a central part of it Transhumanism and Transcendence Ronald Cole-Turner, 2011-09-29 The timeless human desire to be more beautiful, intelligent, healthy, athletic, or young has given rise in our time to technologies of human enhancement. Athletes use drugs to increase their strength or stamina; cosmetic surgery is widely used to improve physical appearance; millions of men take drugs like Viagra to enhance sexual performance. And today researchers are exploring technologies such as cell regeneration and implantable devices that interact directly with the brain. Some condemn these developments as a new kind of cheating, not just in sports but in life itself, promising rewards without effort and depriving us most of all of what it means to be authentic human beings. Transhumanists, on the other hand, reject what they see as a rationalizing of human limits, as if being human means being content forever with underachieving bodies and brains. To be human, they insist, is to be restless with possibilities, always eager to transcend biological limits. As the debate grows in urgency, how should theology respond? Christian theologians recognize truth on both sides of the argument, pointing out how the yearnings of the transhumanists, if not their technological methods, find deep affinities in Christian belief. In this volume, Ronald Cole Turner has joined seasoned scholars and younger emerging voices together to bring fresh insight into the technologies that are already reshaping the future of Christian life and hope Addiction Neuroethics Adrian Carter, Wayne Hall, 2011-11-17 Addiction is a significant health and social problem and one of the largest preventable causes of disease globally. Neuroscience promises to revolutionise our ability to treat addiction, lead to recognition of addiction as a real disorder in need of medical treatment, and thereby reduce stigma and discrimination However neuroscience raises numerous social and ethical challenges If addicted individuals are suffering from a brain disease that drives them to drug use should we mandate treatment Does addiction impair an individual s ability to consent to research or treatment How will neuroscience affect social policies towards drug use Addiction Neuroethics addresses these challenges by examining ethical implications of emerging neurobiological treatments including novel psychopharmacology neurosurgery drug vaccines to prevent relapse and genetic screening to identify individuals who are vulnerable to addiction Essential reading for academics clinicians researchers and policy makers in the fields of addiction mental health and public policy
