Art of Illusion Dan Karlholm, 2006 To survey art history as a whole was a pressing task for a generation of German scholars around the mid nineteenth century Their projections of a historicist chain of artworks ranged from textual narratives without illustrations to separate picture compendia as well as images of a more allegorical kind Other means with which to picture art history as part of a virtually all encompassing cultural history were the museums of art erected in Germany at the time in Berlin and Munich especially This book deals with practices of representing art history in various media This includes post Hegelian texts and engravings of art history from the 1840s onwards by Franz Kugler Julius Schnorr and others In addition works of art of the late twentieth century by Andy Warhol Anselm Kiefer and others provide opportunities to speculate on the after effects and discursive traces of the old regime Extending the concept of historiography to include not just textual or institutional endeavours but a host of different images as well from reproductive prints to pop paintings and visual archives of the digital era this study is intended to contribute in new ways to a critical historiography of the field of art history and visual culture today

Nietzsche on Time and History Manuel Dries, 2008-11-06 In 1885 Nietzsche insisted that from now on philosophy was only acceptable as the most general form of history as an attempt somehow to describe Heraclitean becoming and to abbreviate it into signs Taking this remark as a starting point the aim of this volume is to examine the intricate relationship between Nietzsche's philosophy of time and his philosophy of history. The questions that arise include: What are the new conceptions of time that Nietzsche has to offer? What kind of historian was Nietzsche himself? What kinds of temporalized histories and historicized philosophies did he write or fail to write? This collection of essays written by fourteen academics including eminent figures such as John Richardson, Raymond Geuss, Lawrence J. Hatab and Andrea Orsucci constitute essential reading for specialists of Nietzsche and will also appeal to a larger audience of intellectual historians, philosophers and others who are interested in the development of modern thought.

Post-Structuralism and the Question of History Derek Attridge, Geoff Bennington, Robert Young, 1987. Recent developments in literary theory such as structuralism and deconstruction have come under attack for neglecting history while historically based approaches have been criticized for failing to take account of the problems inherent in their methodological foundations. This collection of essays is unique in that it focuses on the relation between post-structuralism and historical, especially Marxist, literary theory and criticism. The volume includes a deconstructive reading of Marx's essays that relate history to the philosophical and institutional context and a number of studies of particular texts, literary and non-literary, which pose the question of history and literary theory with particular force.

Cultural History After Foucault John Neubauer, 2018-01-18. Both as historian and maker of culture, Foucault infused numerous disciplines of study with a new conceptual vocabulary and an agenda for future research. His ideas have called central assumptions in Western culture into question and altered the ways in which scholars and social scientists approach such issues as discourse theory, theory of knowledge, Eros, technologies of the Self and Other, punishment and prisons and asylums and madness. The contributors to this volume indicate Foucault's achievements and the suggestive power of his work as well as his methodological weaknesses, historical inaccuracies and ambiguities. Above all, they attempt to show how one can use Foucault to go beyond him in opening new approaches to cultural history. Though comprehensiveness was not attempted, their essays broach the major controversial aspects of Foucauldian cultural history: the position of the subject, the fusion of power and knowledge, sexuality, the historical structures and changes and they explicitly analyze them with respect to antiquity, the Renaissance and the nineteenth century. In this collection, Neubauer presents analyses by historians, literary scholars and philosophers of the entire transdisciplinary range of Foucault's oeuvre, emphasizing the rich suggestiveness of its agenda. The breadth of the undertaking makes it suitable for seminars and graduate courses in numerous departments.

History in Transit Dominick LaCapra, 2018-08-06 History in Transit comprises Dominick LaCapra s explorations of relationships he believes have been insufficiently theorized between experience and identity between history and various theories of subjectivity between extreme events and their representation between institutional structures and the kinds of knowledge produced within them Taken together these discussions form a dialogical encounter positing the links among epistemological questions historicist ones and issues pertaining to disciplinary and institutional politics Reacting against the antitheoretical bias of some prominent historians LaCapra presents an alternative model of historiographical practice one in which emphases on plurality and hybridity are combined with the concept of historical experience For LaCapra experience emerges as a category both theoretically determined and anchored in the facticity of the everyday LaCapra tests the assumptions and implications of the way one approaches the past by looking to psychoanalysis to render more self aware the relationship between the historian and his or her material He offers criticisms of assumptions held by practicing historians and theorists placing the study of history at the center of a larger argument about the role of the contemporary university Contesting both corporatization and claims that the university is in ruins LaCapra writes It is paradoxical that the demand to make the university conform to an ever increasing extent to a market or business model seems oblivious to the fact that the American university has probably been the most successful of its type in the world that students from other countries disproportionately desire to study in it first stepped ashore on North America serves as the touchstone for Kerwin Klein's analysis of the narrating of history. Klein explores the traditions through which historians, philosophers, anthropologists, and literary critics have understood the story of America's origin and the way those understandings have shaped and been shaped by changing conceptions of history. The American West was once the frontier space where migrating Europe collided with Native America where the historical civilizations of the Old World met the nonhistorical wilds of the New. It was not only the cultural combat zone where American democracy was forged but also the ragged edge of History itself where historical and nonhistorical defied and defined each other. Klein maintains that the idea of a collision between people with and without history still dominates public memory. But the collision he believes resounds even more powerfully in the historical imagination which creates conflicts between narration and knowledge and carries them into the language used to describe the American frontier. In Klein's words: "We remain obscurely entangled in philosophies of history we no longer profess and the very idea of America balances on history's shifting frontiers." The American frontier, a potent symbol since Europeans first stepped ashore on North America, serves as the touchstone for Kerwin Klein's analysis of the narrating of history. Klein explores the traditions through which historians, philosophers, anthropologists, and literary critics have understood the story of America's origin and the way those understandings have shaped and been shaped by changing conceptions of history.

Afterlives of war Michael Roper, 2023-07-05 Afterlives of war documents the lives and historical pursuits of the generations who grew up in Australia, Britain, and Germany after the First World War. Although they were not direct witnesses to the conflict, they experienced its effects from their earliest years. Based on ninety oral history interviews and observation during the First World War Centenary, this pioneering study reveals the contribution of descendants to the contemporary memory of the First World War and the intimate personal legacies of the conflict that animate their history making. Historiographies of Game Studies Alisha Karabinus, 2025-07-25 Historiographies of Game Studies offers a first of its kind reflection on how game studies as an academic field has been shaped and sustained. Today, game studies is a thriving field with many dedicated national and international conferences, journals, professional societies, and a strong presence at conferences in disciplines like computer science, communication, media studies, theater, visual arts, popular culture, and others. But when did game studies start? And what and who is at the core or center of game studies? Fields are defined as much by what they are not as by what they are, and their borderlands can be hotly contested spaces. In this anthology, scholars from across the field consider how the boundaries of game studies have been established, codified, contested, and protected, raising critical questions about who and what gets left out of the field. Over more than two dozen chapters and interviews with leading figures including Espen Aarseth, Kishonna Gray, Henry Jenkins, Lisa Nakamura, Kentaro Matsumoto, Ken McAllister, and Janet Murray, the contributors offer a dazzling array of insightful provocations that address the formation, propagation, and cultivation of game studies, interrogating not only the field's pasts but its potential futures and asking us to think deliberately about how academic fields are collectively built.
