Students' manual. pt. 2.

Instructor's manual Edward Bradford Titchener, 1905 The general purpose with which this book has been written is sufficiently indicated by its title I have selected a number of the classical experiments of Experimental Psychology and have tried to present them in such a way that their performance shall have a real disciplinary value for the undergraduate student Within this general purpose my aim has been two fold I have sought to show in the first place that psychology is above the laboratory that we employ our instruments of precision not for their own sake but solely because they help us to a refined and more accurate introspection And secondly just as in my Outline of Psychology and Primer of Psychology I gave the results of experimentation a prominent place in the psychological system so here I have treated the selected experiments not as separate exercises but as points of departure for systematic discussion PsycINFO Database Record c 2005 APA all rights reserved

Psychobiology of Stress Stefano Puglisi-Allegra, A. Oliverio, 1990-10-31 From a historical point of view the first studies on the response of the organism to stressful situations in general and on the psychobiology of stress in particular are probably those of Cannon and de la Paz the physiologists who showed in 1911 that the adrenal medulla and the sympathetic system are involved in emergency situations Cannon noted that the venous blood of cats frightened by barking dogs contained adrenaline a response of the organism which was prevented by adrenalectomy or by section of the splanchnic nerve innervating the adrenal medulla Cannon suggested that the adrenal medulla was acting in concert with the sympathetic nervous system so that both systems were activated during stress The role of the sympathetic system in response to stressful events was later emphasized by the experiments carried out by Maickel et al 1967 and by Mason 1968 these authors clearly showed that stressors activate the sympathetic system causing it to release adrenaline and noradrenaline This line of research may be contrasted with that carried out by Hans Selye centered on of the adrenal cortex in the stress response Selye s findings and theories originated the role the so called hypothalamic pituitary adrenal cortex HPA model of stress in short during stress adrenocorticotrophic hormone is released from cells of the anterior pituitary and elicits secretion of glucocorticoids from the adrenal cortex
