Same Client The Demographics Of Education And Service Delivery Systems:

The Same Client Harold L. Hodgkinson, 1989-01-01 In the United States services such as education health care housing and transportation are provided for citizens by a bewildering array of agencies at many government levels Service organizations must learn to communicate across functional lines and educators must become familiar with other service providers at various levels This means perceiving the client as the most important part of the organizations providing services to that person family or group The rationale is that these agencies are all serving the same children and families as clients This approach is the most efficient effective and humane way to deliver services in an era of diminishing financial resources Drawing on numerous maps tables and statistics this report explores the complex interrelationships among family demography housing transportation health crime and education Interagency cooperation and taxpayer investment in families basic needs are essential to prevent future problems like crime illiteracy mental retardation and reduce the need for costly programs to deal with them For example it would be more cost effective to help low income families secure affordable housing and to supply small grants to cover broken down cars and medical emergencies than to maintain these same families on welfare Prisons are another costly service that might be reduced by investing more heavily in early education and college access programs Recent occupational and demographic trends including metropolitan areas moving across state lines are provided to support an interactive client centered agenda and recommendations for achieving it 18 references MLH The Politics Of Linking Schools And Social Services Louise Adler, Sid Gardner, 2002-11-01 From the time the reform movement began in the progressive era with concerns about public health and universal access to education arguments have been raised for and against linking schools and social services and the merits or otherwise of each system A new argument for the collaboration is that integration will lead to substantially better services than those provided by separate organizations This volume brings together a wide array of cross national research and public policy issues to focus on a new framework of service provision It looks at the different networks of organizations of which schools and social services have been a part and at the political implications or results of bringing together the professionals from such organizations It takes into account the constraints resulting from the larger institutional network experience by such organizations The book also presents a range of perspectives on the way preparation is followed by four responses that present somewhat varying points of view The contributors come from a wide range of experiences including specialists in politics of education law urban studies children s issues and those providing reflections on practical experience Resources in Education , 1990 Access To Academics for All Students Paula Kluth, 2003-06-20 The authors of this book join a growing number of voices calling for teachers in diverse inclusive schools to move beyond facilitating social participation in classroom activities and consider ways to intellectually engage ALL learners They draw on emerging work linking critical theory with disability issues work being done in curriculum studies around issues of social justice teaching authentic instruction service learning and critical pedagogy and
