Critical Security Studies in the Digital Age Joseph Downing, 2023-01-23 This book demonstrates that the disciplinary boundaries present within international relations approaches to security studies are redundant when examining social media and inter and multi disciplinary analysis is key A key result of the analysis undertaken is that when examining the social media sphere security scholars need to expect the unexpected This is because social media enables users to subvert contest and create security narratives with symbols and idioms of their choice which can take into account traditional security themes but also unexpected and under explored themes such as narratives from the local context of the users towns and cities and the symbolism of football clubs The book also explores the complex topography of social media when considering constructions of security The highly dynamic topography of social media is neither elite dominated and hierarchical as the Copenhagen School conceptualises security speak However neither is it completely flat and egalitarian as suggested by the vernacular security studies non elite approach Rather social media's topography is shifting and dynamic with individuals gaining influence in security debates in unpredictable ways In examining social media this book engages with the emancipatory burden of critical security studies This book argues that it remains unfulfilled on social media and rather presents a thin

notion of discursive emancipation where social media does provide the ability for previously excluded voices to participate in security debates even if this does not result in their direct emancipation from power hierarchies and structures offline

Germany's New Security Demographics Wenke Apt, 2013-12-04 Military recruitment will become more difficult in times of demographic aging The question arises whether demographic change will constrain the capacity of aging states like Germany to conduct foreign policy and pursue their national security interests Since contemporary military operations still display a strong human element particular scrutiny is given to the empirical analysis of the determinants of military propensity and military service among youth An additional human capital projection until 2030 illustrates how the decline in the youth population will interact with trends in educational attainment and adolescent health to further complicate military recruitment in the future A concluding review of recruiting practices in other NATO countries provides insight in best practice policy options to reduce the military's sensitivity to demographic change Following this approach the book gives prominence to a topic that has thus far been under represented in the greater discussion of demographic change today namely the demographic impact on international affairs and strategic calculations Indo-Pacific Strategic Churn

Human and Water Security in Israel and Jordan Philip Jan Schäfer, 2012-10-28 The work aims at answering the question as to how far discourses on human security are present in Jordan and Israel if they converge and if political solutions for the issue of water security could be derived The analysis is based on the assumption that from human security perspective common solutions for urgent problems can be derived more easily than out of a perspective of national security Yet it is acknowledged that according to a new security perspective different security threats are being identified by relevant actors An empirical analysis of written statements and utterances of the respective security elites establishes the methodological tool for the identification of human security discourses in Israel and Jordan Subsequently it is estimated how far water is presented as a matter of national security in Israel and Jordan using the theory of securitization
