Schuh,2005 Text and photographs introduce basic community concepts related to towns including location things in a town and different types of towns Memories of My Town Anna-Maria Åström,Pirjo Korkiakangas,Pia Olsson,2004-07-07 Memories of My Town is an exploration into how town dwellers experience their environment in a complicated way As people in urban milieus relate themselves to the environment this takes place on many levels where especially the time level becomes problematic The urban buildings and settings can be looked upon as a kind of collective history as carriers or witnesses of times past But it is only the town dwellers that experience urban time itself the time they live in but through their memories also times past In this past some elements take symbolically dense expressions Through reliving and narrating their experiences the symbolically important factors in this urban relationship will be outlined for investigations concerning three towns Helsinki the capital Vyborg the ceded and lost Karelian town and Jyväskylä a town with dense commercial and cultural dimensions in the middle of Finland The aim of the book is to use different theoretical concepts as guidelines in analysing the different narrative texts

Aronoff, Jan Kubik, 2013 What can anthropology and political science learn from each other The authors argue that collaboration particularly in the area of concepts and methodologies is tremendously beneficial for both disciplines though they also deal with some troubling aspects of the relationship Focusing on the influence of anthropology on political science the book examines the basic assumptions the practitioners of each discipline make about the nature of social and political reality compares some of the key concepts each field employs and provides an extensive review of the basic methods of research that bridge both disciplines ethnography and case study Through ethnography participant observation reliance on extended case studies and the use of anthropological concepts and sensibilities a greater understanding of some of the most challenging issues of the day can be gained For example political anthropology challenges the illusion of the autonomy of the political assumed by political science to characterize so called modern societies Several chapters include a cross disciplinary analysis of key concepts and issues political culture political ritual the politics of collective identity democratization in divided societies conflict resolution civil society and the politics of post Communist transformations
