Natural Resource Management Of Water :

Water Resources Management and Sustainability Pankaj Kumar, Gaurav Kant Nigam, Manish Kumar Sinha, Anju Singh, 2022-03-06 Water is the elixir of life and is crucial for sustainable development. Earlier it was considered to be a limitless or at least a fully renewable natural resource. During the past 20 years, however, there has been tremendous pressure on this precious natural resource mainly due to rapid urbanization, industrialization, and the increase in the human population. Together, these have resulted in increasing demand for irrigation, industrial, and household purposes to meet supply chain requirements. Keeping in mind the scarcity of available water resources in the near future and its impending threats, it has become imperative on the part of scientists in hydrology and allied disciplines such as geography, landscape planning, sustainability science, etc. Regional planners and supply chain management experts also must be involved in studying the spatial and temporal nature of the growing demand for water and the future availability for its judicious use and sustainable management. A primary intent of the book is to provide comprehensive scientific knowledge base on water resource management and sustainability. It covers geo-engineering and scientific problems, case studies, and sustainable solutions in the water resources management domain. Additionally, and of equal importance, the chapters of the book provide in-depth coverage on water resource vulnerability, water quality, wastewater treatment, application of remote sensing and geographical information systems, hydrological modeling, and harvesting, climate variability, and runoff, sediment discharge, and irrigation, planning, community participation in water governance, internet of things, and machine learning applications for sustainable water resources management. This practical state-of-the-art reference book is a valuable resource for students, researchers, scientists, policymakers, spatio-temporal designers of water resource systems, various stakeholders interested in hydro-climatology, and sustainable water resources management. Decentralization and Coordination of Water Resource Management Douglas D. Parker, Yacov Tsur, 2011-07-08 Centralized top-down management of water resources through regulations has created unnecessary economic burdens upon users. More flexible decentralized controls through the use of economic incentives have gained acceptance over the past decade. The theme of this book is the increasing efforts throughout water-scarce regions to rely upon economic incentives and decentralized mechanisms for efficient water management and allocation. The book begins with a section of introductory chapters describing water systems, institutions, constraints, and similarities in the following regions: Israel and the Middle East, Turkey, California, Florida, and Australia. Four of these regions face similar climates with wet winters and dry summers. Florida has a more even seasonal distribution of rainfall yet it uses similar management strategies in controlling groundwater demand and water quality. The book concludes with a section on water management case studies. These case studies examine issues of conflict related to both water quality and water quantity. While the case studies address both international and intranational concerns in specific regions of the world, they portray broad principles that are applicable to many regions. Fundamentals of Natural Resource Management Mr. Rohit

Swinton,2005 Part I Introduction Part II Valuation of ecosystem services and biophysical indicators of NRM impacts Part III Methodological advances for a comprehensive impact assessment Part IV NRM impact assessment in practice Water Quality Jim Perry,Elizabeth Leigh Vanderklein,2009-06-24 Once a purely technical sub discipline of hydrology water quality management is now a social and political discipline with concerns ranging from ensuring adequate health standards to preserving biological diversity and ecosystem integrity This book goes beyond the technical manuals and specialty publications to provide support and guidance for the everyday decisions made by water quality managers Water Quality Management of a Natural Resource addresses the rarely touched upon social biophysical land use and policy considerations which reflect the issues that confront managers and decision makers In a series of incisive reviews experts address key topics in modern water resource management and case studies illustrate the successes and failures of past management efforts Water Quality Management of a Natural Resource develops and presents a management view requiring an awareness of the social context of management new ecological theories and how policy is implemented in different situations and countries Natural Resource Management of Water and Land Edward O. Gangstad,1990 TECHNICAL Economic Valuation of Water Resources in Agriculture R. Kerry Turner,2004-01-01 The purpose of this report is to produce a review on water resource valuation issues and techniques specifically for the appraisal and negotiation of raw as opposed to bulk or retail water resource allocation for agricultural development projects The review considers raw water in naturally occurring watercourses lakes wetlands soil and aquifers taking an ecosystem function perspective at a catchment scale and takes account of the demands from irrigated and rainfed agriculture It is hoped that the review will have particular application to developing countries where agreed methods for reconciling competing uses are often absent but nevertheless takes account of valuation approaches that have been made in post industrial economies Improving Economic Instruments for Water Resources Management in the Republic of Buryatia (Lake Baikal Basin) OECD,2016-11-15 A major challenge facing the Republic of Buryatia subject of the Russian Federation is how to balance the task of protecting Lake Baikal a unique water object and ecological system included in the UNESCO list of World Natural Heritage Areas with the need for dynamic and sustainable Water-resources Investigations Report Morgan A.
