New British Architecture In Germany:

Neue Britische Architektur in Deutschland Michael Jenner, 2000 The close relationship between the British and German architectural scenes developed over two centuries is a showcase for the work of British architects working in Germany This stunning volume published to coincide with the opening in July 2000 of the new British Embassy in Berlin designed by Michael Wilford celebrates the range and excellence of new British architecture in Germany as an ongoing success Since the 18th century British architectural life has been enriched by great German figures such as Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg Gotha the architects Gropius and Mendelsohn and the architectural critic Nikolaus Pevsner British architecture in the fullest sense of the term arrived in Germany in 1977 when the London partnership of Stirling and Wilford won the competition for the new art gallery in Stuttgart This milestone set the scene for British architects and German clients to work together consistently producing a model for international cooperation as well as a series of stunning buildings David Chipperfield

Colonialism and Modern Architecture in Germany Itohan Osayimwese, 2017-07-19 Over the course of the nineteenth century drastic social and political changes technological innovations and exposure to non Western cultures affected Germany's built environment in profound ways The economic challenges of Germany's colonial project forced architects designing for the colonies to abandon a centuries long highly ornamental architectural style in favor of structural technologies and building materials that catered to the local contexts of its remote colonies such as prefabricated systems As German architects gathered information about the regions under their influence in Africa Asia and the Pacific during expeditions at international exhibitions and from colonial entrepreneurs and officials they published their findings in books and articles and organized lectures and exhibits that stimulated progressive architectural thinking and shaped the emerging modern language of architecture within Germany itself Offering in depth interpretations across the fields of architectural history and postcolonial studies Itohan Osayimwese considers the effects of colonialism travel and globalization on the development of modern architecture in Germany from the 1850s until the 1930s Since architectural developments in nineteenth century Germany are typically understood as crucial to the evolution of architecture worldwide in the twentieth century this book globalizes the history of modern architecture at its founding moment Britain Alan Powers, 2007
