Agricultural Mechanization and Automation - Volume I Paul McNulty, Patrick M. Grace, 2009-07-28 Agricultural Mechanization and Automation is a component of Encyclopedia of Food and Agricultural Sciences Engineering and Technology Resources in the global Encyclopedia of Life Support Systems EOLSS which is an integrated compendium of twenty one Encyclopedias The mechanization of farming practices throughout the world has revolutionized food production enabling it to maintain pace with population growth except in some less developed countries most notably in Africa Agricultural mechanization has involved the partial or full replacement of human energy and animal powered equipment e g plows seeders and harvesters by engine driven equipment The theme on Agricultural Mechanization and Automation cover six main topics Technology and Power in Agriculture Farm Machinery Facilities and Equipment for Livestock Management Environmental Monitoring Recovery and Use of Wastes and by Products Slaughtering and Processing of Livestock which are then expanded into multiple subtopics each as a chapter These two volumes are aimed at the following five major target audiences University and College students Educators Professional practitioners Research personnel and Policy analysts managers and decision makers and NGOs Agricultural mechanization and agricultural transformation Diao, Xinshen, Silver, Jed, Takeshima, Hiroyuki, 2016-04-29 A renewed focus on agriculture s potential contribution to economic transformation in Africa has resulted in increased attention paid to agricultural mechanization African agriculture still relies predominantly on human muscle power despite anecdotal evidence on urbanization and rising rural wages in contrast to other developing regions that have experienced rapid increases in agricultural mechanization during the past few decades Past state led mechanization pushes in Africa often failed due to insufficient understanding of the nature of demand for mechanization technologies among farmers and insufficient knowledge of private sector functions This background paper reviews the factors likely to influence farmer demand for mechanization in Africa and details different existing and potential mechanization supply models Although an empirical analysis of mechanization demand and the effectiveness of supply chains is beyond the scope of this paper in part due to data limitations this paper suggests that demand for mechanization may be emerging in some parts of Africa It also suggests that private sector driven supply models are better positioned to meet this demand than direct government involvement and certain types of subsidized programs The paper then identifies possible areas for government support to complement private sector leadership in developing mechanization supply chains Nevertheless significant further research is required to better understand the changing nature of mechanization demand in Africa and the extent and effectiveness of different supply models in meeting it Introduction to Agricultural Mechanisation R. N. Kaul, C. O. Egbo, 1985 Agricultural mechanization Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-07-25 This paper is specifically about agricultural mechanisation the opportunities provided by mechanisation for intensifying production in a sustainable manner in value addition and agri food value chain development as well as the inherent opportunities implied for improved local economies and livelihoods The establishment of viable business enterprises agro processors transport services and so forth as a result of increased agricultural mechanisation in rural areas is crucial to creating employment and income opportunities and thereby enhancing the demand for farm produce Mechanisation plays a key role in enabling the growth of commercial agri food systems and the efficiency of post harvest handling processing and marketing operations and as such can be a major determinant in the availability and accessibility of food the food prices paid by urban and rural poor as well as contributing to increased household food security

Agricultural Mechanization in Sub-Saharan Africa Karim Houmy,2013 The manual work carried out by farmers and their families is often both arduous and time consuming and in many countries this is a major constraint to increasing agricultural production Such day to day drudgery is a major contributing factor in the migration of people particularly the young from the rural countryside to seek the prospect of a better life in the towns and cities Farm production can be substantially increased through the use of mechanical technologies which both are labor saving and directly increase yields and production This document provides guidelines on the development and formulation of an agricultural mechanization strategy and forms part of FAO s approach on sustainable production intensification

Mechanization for Rural Development Josef Kienzle,John E. Ashburner,B. G. Sims,2013 This publication gives a wide ranging perspective on the present state of mechanization in the developing world and as such constitutes a solid platform on which to build strategies for a sustainable future Farm mechanization forms an integral plank in the implementation of sustainable crop production intensification methodologies and sustainable intensification necessarily means that the protection of natural resources and the production of ecosystem services go hand in hand with intensified production practices This requires specific mechanization measures to allow crops to be established with minimum soil disturbance to allow the soil to be protected under organic cover for as long as possible and to establish crop rotations and associations to feed the soil and to exploit crop nutrients from various soil horizons This work is the starting point to help the reader understand the complexities and requirements of the task ahead

An evolving paradigm of agricultural mechanization development: How much can Africa learn from Asia? Diao, Xinshen, ed.,Takeshima, Hiroyuki. ed.,Zhang, Xiaobo, ed.,2020-12-07 Agricultural mechanization in Africa south of the Sahara especially for small farms and businesses requires a new paradigm to meet the needs of the continent s evolving farming systems Can Asia with its recent success in adopting mechanization offer a model for Africa An Evolving Paradigm of Agricultural Mechanization Development analyzes the experiences of eight Asian and five African countries The authors explore crucial government roles in boosting and supporting mechanization from import policies to promotion policies to public good policies Potential approaches presented to facilitating mechanization in Africa include prioritizing market led hiring services eliminating distortions and developing appropriate technologies for the African context The role of agricultural mechanization within overall agricultural and rural transformation strategies in Africa is also discussed The book s recommendations and insights should be useful to national policymakers and the development community who can adapt this knowledge to local contexts and use it as a foundation for further research

Agricultural Mechanization in Sub-Saharan Africa, 2013 The manual work carried out by farmers and their families is often both arduous and time consuming and in many countries this is a major constraint to increasing agricultural production Such day to day drudgery is a major contributory factor in the migration of people particularly the young from the rural countryside to seek the prospect of a better life in the towns and cities Farm production can be substantially increased through the use of mechanical technologies which are both labour saving and directly increase yields and production The necessary inputs are carefully selected tools machines and equipment Such technological interventions are commonly referred to as agricultural mechanization and a judicious choice is crucial for farmers to achieve optimum profitability from their businesses and to attain an acceptable quality of life for themselves and their families The choice can also have a major impact on the environment only the use of those which have a positive effect can be sustainable over the long term It is therefore important to identify appropriate mechanization strategies with particular emphasis on increased production farmers livelihoods and environmentally sustainable options This document provides guidelines on the development and formulation of an agricultural mechanization strategy and forms part of FAO s approach on sustainable production intensification Publisher s description
