Problematizing Service-Learning Trae Stewart,Nicole

Webster,2010-12-01 Interest in and research on civic engagement and service learning have increased exponentially In this rapid growth efforts have been made to institutionalize pedagogies of engagement across both K 12 and higher education As a result increased positive attention has been complemented equally by well founded critiques complicating experiential approaches claims and questioning if institutional financial and philosophical commitment is warranted A key complaint from these critical voices is the tightly woven protective insular core in the field of service learning This claim is not unfounded nor necessarily bad Initial efforts to legitimize service learning and other forms of community based education required group cohesion The concern however is that the initial group cohesion has led to groupthink wherein group members have avoided critical analysis and evaluation This book aims to prevent groupthink within the field of service learning by allowing for the examination of effective alternatives by new voices who can serve as critical evaluators from within the field itself Myriad perspectives are offered including empirical theoretical practical and community perspectives Authors challenge preconceived notions of service learning who is benefited by this pedagogy outcomes of participation and implementation and most importantly the theoretical conceptual and methodological lenses through which service learning is even considered The book allows servicelearning s major criticisms to be examined challenges to be voiced and research agendas to be laid This book parallels service learning s presence and popularity across various disciplines fields Chapters are written from broad perspectives and are aimed to inform service learning researchers and educators community organizations and policy makers who consider service learning as a means to address civic responsibility Authors expose theoretical and philosophical concerns circulating in the field and often still occupying spaces on the fringe of discourse action and research

The book raises fundamental questions for undergraduate and graduate courses with social justice themes by considering the implications that pedagogies of engagement have on learners and communities Teaching for EcoJustice Rebecca A.

Teaching Mysteries Clifford Mayes, 2005-02-22 By carefully examining a handful of great exemplars of teaching from various spiritual traditions and cultural contexts this book breaks new ground in helping both prospective and practicing teachers discover and deepen their sense of spiritual calling The masters examined in this book are found in many venues Some appear in biographies such as Yogananda the great Hindu saint of the 20th century in his Autobiography of a Yogi or Eugene Herrigel and his Zen archery master in Zen in the Art of Archery Some are enshrined in literature such as St Thomas More in Robert Bolt's dramatization of More's life A Man for All Seasons Others like the Yaqui medicine man Don Juan in Carlos Castaneda's Journey to Ixtlan occupy an intriguing region that moves on the misty boundaries between biography and fiction A few even reside in academia among them the Jewish theologian Martin Buber author of the 20th century theological classic I and Thou In encountering these exemplars of spiritual teaching each teacher may discover and uniquely appropriate ways to further his or her own spiritual growth as a teacher as well as the growth of his or her students in the most traditional to the most experimental school settings Special emphasis is placed on the perspectives and needs of public school teachers and administrators At the end of each chapter are Topics for Discussion and Topics for Research to stimulate further thought and research
