Reflections On Individual Wellness:

Reflections on Individual Wellness Stephen R. Germeroth, Steven B. Hafen, 1972 Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1974 Promoting Wellness and Resiliency in Correctional Officers Hayden P. Smith, 2022-12-26 Correctional officers face considerable stress risk and danger that lead to poor physical and mental health outcomes In fact their life expectancy is 15 years shorter than the national average Public perception and media portrayals of correctional officers tend to reinforce stereotypes of brutish improper and uncontrolled behavior Yet the reality is that correctional officers are operating a default public and mental health system for a sizeable portion of our society a responsibility that exposes them to considerable risk These negative effects have been compounded by an international staffing crisis that has made our jails and prisons far less safe for working officers To address this situation this book features an examination of a combined 11 313 correctional officers and 42 of their family members in the United States Canada and Europe It explores proactive strategies that can reduce rates of posttraumatic stress disorder PTSD in correctional officers which currently surpasses those found in returning military veterans who experienced combat It then delves into the dynamics of correctional officer suicide featuring the perspectives of their families This book highlights innovative approaches that can build on existing strengths including the role of international exchange programs It presents universal themes that impact the safety wellbeing and resiliency of correctional officers along with positive outcomes related to evidence based programs that maximize health in the correctional workplace This book will be of interest to researchers and advanced students of criminology mental health public policy social work and sociology The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Criminal Justice Studies *Spiritual Practice. Cultivating Professional Resilience in Direct Practice Jason M. Newell, 2017-09-26 Overwhelming empirical evidence indicates that new social workers particularly those going into child welfare or other trauma related care will discover emotional challenges including the indirect or secondary effects of the trauma work itself professional burnout and compassion fatigue However the newly revised CSWE Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards EPAS does not mandate the inclusion of content related to self care in social work curriculum or field education In a textbook that bridges the gap between theoretical and pragmatic approaches to this important issue in human service work Jason M Newell provides a potential resolution by conceptualizing self care as an ongoing and holistic set of practice behaviors described as the key to professional resilience To address the effects of trauma related care on direct practitioners Newell provides a comprehensive competency based model for professional resilience examining four key constructs stress empathy resilience and self care from a range of theoretical dimensions For those who work with vulnerable populations the tendency to frame self care solely within organizational context overlooks the importance of self care in domains beyond the agency setting Alternatively he uses a framework grounded in the ecological systems perspective conceptualizing self care as a broader set of practice behaviors pertaining to the whole person including the physical interpersonal organizational familial and spiritual domains of the psychosocial self Alongside professional self care practices at the organizational level Newell makes a case for the pragmatic role of recreational activities time with family and friends physical health spirituality and mindfulness The application of a comprehensive approach to self care practice has potential to empower practitioners to remain resilient and committed to the values mission and spirit of the social work profession in the face of trauma
