

The background of the cover is a complex, abstract painting. At the center is a face with a pale, almost white complexion, closed eyes, and a serene expression. The face is framed by dark, swirling, cloud-like or smoke-like patterns in shades of blue, black, and grey. The entire composition is surrounded by a dense field of colorful, organic shapes and splatters in red, orange, yellow, green, and blue, giving it a textured, painterly feel.

Empire of Religion David Chidester, 2022-12-22 How is knowledge about religion and religions produced and how is that knowledge authenticated and circulated David Chidester seeks to answer these questions in Empire of Religion documenting and analyzing the emergence of a science of comparative religion in Great Britain during the second half of the nineteenth century and its complex relations to the colonial situation in southern Africa In the process Chidester provides a counterhistory of the academic study of religion an alternative to standard accounts that have failed to link the field of comparative religion with either the power relations or the historical contingencies of the imperial project In developing a material history of the study of religion Chidester documents the importance of African religion the persistence of the divide between savagery and civilization and the salience of mediations imperial colonial and indigenous in which knowledge about religions was produced He then identifies the recurrence of these mediations in a number of case studies including Friedrich Max Müller's dependence on colonial experts H Rider Haggard and John Buchan's fictional accounts of African religion and W E B Du Bois's studies of African religion By reclaiming these theorists for this history Chidester shows that race rather than theology was formative in the emerging study of religion in Europe and North America Sure to be controversial Empire of Religion is a major contribution to the field of comparative religious studies
