Sterne, Tristram, Yorick Melvyn New, Peter de Voogd, Judith Hawley, 2015-11-12 Sterne Tristram Yorick Tercentenary Essays on Laurence Sterne derives from the Laurence Sterne Tercentenary Conference held at Royal Holloway University of London on July 8 11 2013 It was attended by some eighty scholars from fourteen countries the conference heard more than sixty papers The organizers invited participants to submit revised versions of their contributions for this volume and the thirteen selected exhibit it is hoped the defining features both of the conference and of Sterne studies at the beginning of the twenty first century It is worth remarking that the selected authors represent seven countries that Sterne may well be the most internationally accepted of all eighteenth century English authors is certainly a claim worthy of a sentimental traveler This collection recognizes three faces of Sterne beginning with several biographical essays examining respectively his celebrity status family life politics and philosophy The second face is that of Tristram studied from vantage points provided by ethics linguistics gender studies and comparative literature The final group of essays examines the face of Yorick as the protagonist of A Sentimental Journey beginning with an ethnographic study of relationships moving through questions of identity and concluding with the possible future of literary studies a return to aesthetics

Moderate Conservatism John Kekes, 2023 In Moderate Conservatism Reclaiming the Center John Kekes offers a way forward for those who are alarmed by the current state of politics in America Kekes makes a reasoned case for moderation the defense of the United States constitutional democracy and a criticism of all forms of political extremism The U S political system has endured because the Constitution has guided the balance of the often conflicting claims of justice liberty equality prosperity and security on which the well being of all American citizens depend

An Analysis of Edmund Burke's Reflections on the Revolution in France Riley Quinn, 2017-07-05 Edmund Burke's 1791 Reflections on the Revolution in France is a strong example of how the thinking skills of analysis and reasoning can support even the most rhetorical of arguments Often cited as the foundational work of modern conservative political thought Burke's Reflections is a sustained argument against the French Revolution Though Burke is in many ways not interested in rational close analysis of the arguments in favour of the revolution he points out a crucial flaw in revolutionary thought upon which he builds his argument For Burke that flaw was the sheer threat that revolution poses to life property and society Sceptical about the utopian urge to utterly reconstruct society in line with rational principles Burke argued strongly for conservative progress a continual slow refinement of government and political theory which could move forward without completely overturning the old structures of state and society Old state institutions he reasoned might not be perfect but they work well enough to keep things ticking along Any change made to improve them therefore should be slow not revolutionary While Burke's arguments are deliberately not reasoned in the rational style of those who supported the revolution they show persuasive reasoning at its very best

A Conservative Consensus? Peter King, 2015-12-17 New Labour would like to portray 1997 as a new beginning for public policy but Peter King argues that we now have in housing and in other areas of public policy a consensus based on Thatcherite reforms He explores the particularly conservative understanding of housing that transformed public attitudes in the 1980s and 1990s and the impact it still has on policy This book is written with non housing specialists in mind and will be of interest to students of housing urban studies public policy and politics at both undergraduate and higher levels
