Metropolitan Area Networks:

Local and Metropolitan Area Networks William Stallings, 2000 This book provides up to date coverage of LAN technology and LAN standards and will enhance readers understanding of computer networks for purposes of managing the system solving users problems and planning for future growth related to a company s products and sales Chapter topics include data communications topologies and transmission media protocol architecture Gigabit Ethernet 100 Mbps token ring Fibre Channel ATM LANs wireless LANs concepts of bridges and routers network management and structured cabling systems and types For product development and marketing personnel and data processing personnel

Metropolitan Area Networks Gary C. Kessler, David A. Train, 1992 This book provides an exhaustive look at current MAN standards and products and how they fit in with other communications services and standards It covers the definition of MANs and the two main strategies today ANSI s Fiber Distributed Data Interface FDDI and the IEEE s Distributed Queue Dual Bus DQDB

Metropolitan Area Networks Marco Pellegrini, Enrico Gregori, Luciano Lenzini, 2012-12-06 With the continuing success of Local Area Networks LANs there is an increasing demand to extend their capabilities towards higher data rates and wider areas This together with the progress in fiber optic technology has given rise to the so called Metropolitan Area Networks MANs MANs can span much greater distances than current LAN s and offer data rates on the order of hundreds of Megabits/sec Mbps The success of MANs is mainly due to the opportunity they provide to develop new networking products capable of providing high speed communications between applications at competitive prices which nonetheless give an adequate return on the manufacturers investments A major factor in of appropriate networking standards achieving this goal is the availability Fiber Distributed Data Interface FDDI and Distributed Queue Dual Bus DQDB are the two standard technologies for MANs for which industrial products are already available For this reason this book focuses mainly on these two standards Nowadays there are several books dealing with MANs and these look mainly at FDDI e.g. 2 92 118 141 These books focus primarily on the architectures and protocols whereas they pay little attention to performance analysis Due to the capability of MANs to integrate services a quantitative analysis of the Quality of Service QoS provided by these technologies is a relevant issue and is thus covered in depth in this book

High-Capacity Local and Metropolitan Area Networks Guy Pujolle, 2012-12-06 The main objective of this workshop was to review and discuss the state of the art and the latest advances in the area of 1 10 Gbit/s throughput for local and metropolitan area networks The first generation of local area networks had throughputs in the range 1 20 Mbit/s Well known examples of this first generation networks are the Ethernet and the Token Ring The second generation of networks allowed throughputs in the range 100 200 Mbit/s Representatives of this generation are the FDDI double ring and the DQDB IEEE 802.6 networks The third generation networks will have throughputs in the range 1 10 Gbit/s The rapid development and deployment of fiber optics worldwide as well as the projected emergence of a market for broadband services have given rise to the development of broadband ISDN standards Currently the Asynchronous Transfer Mode ATM appears to be a viable solution to broadband networks The possibility of all optical networks in the future is being examined This would allow the tapping of approximately 50 terahertz or so available in the lightwave range of the frequency spectrum It is envisaged that using such a high speed network it will be feasible to distribute high quality video to the home to carry out rapid retrieval of radiological and other scientific images and to enable multi media conferencing between various parties
