New Library Buildings Of The World:

Building Libraries for the 21st Century T.D. Webb, 2004-08-25 Despite calls for electronic virtual digital libraries without walls the walled variety are still being built some of them massive This book explores the reasons for this contradiction by examining several notable new library facilities around the world to see how modern expectations for libraries are being translated into concrete and steel More and more libraries are looking at change not as a dreaded hazard but as an opportunity that can itself be seized to strengthen the library in the areas of mission technologies facilities funding and organizational structure Thirteen libraries are discussed by a librarian or administrator who worked on the project Each author writes about the design and building concerns that were particularly relevant to that library philosophy political issues or any other concerns that affected planning building and services in the new facility Introductory and concluding chapters identify underlying values and themes tying everything together The unique combinations of issues constraints and opportunities show how libraries are planning to fit into the approaching era of virtual information delivery □□□□□□□□

Alistair Black argues that the architectural modernism of the post war years was symptomatic of the age's spirit of renewal. In the 1960s public libraries truly became libraries of light and Black further explains how this phrase not only describes the shining new library designs with their open plan decluttered Scandinavian inspired designs but also serves as a metaphor for the public library's role as a beacon of social egalitarianism and cultural universalism. A sequel to Books Buildings and Social Engineering 2009 Black's new book takes his fascinating story of the design of British public libraries into the era of architectural modernism.
