Sino Japanese territorial disputes are all important examples of seemingly irrational foreign policy decisions that have determined regional stability and Asian security By examining major events in Asian security this book investigates why and how leaders make risky and seemingly irrational decisions in international politics The authors take the innovative step of integrating the neoclassical realist framework in political science and prospect theory in psychology Their analysis suggests that political leaders are more likely to take risky actions when their vital interests and political legitimacy are seriously threatened For each case the authors first discuss the weaknesses of some of the prevailing arguments mainly from rationalist and constructivist theorizing and then offer an alternative explanation based on their political legitimacy prospect theory model This pioneering book tests and expands prospect theory to the study of Asian security and challenges traditional expected utility based rationalist theories of foreign policy behavior Rationalization of the Pacific Coast Groundfish Limited Entry Trawl Fishery: Including Regulatory Impact Review and Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis ,2010
