A European Quantitative Study Pille Valk, Gerdien Bertram-Troost, Markus Friederici, Céline Béraud, 2009 Religion is on the European agenda again The secularisation paradigm has lost its explanatory power and the newly coined term post secularism is used to describe the realisation that in the current social transformation religion cannot be ignored any longer The quantitative study presented in this book is part of the research effort by the REDCo project REDCo is the abbreviation for Religion in Education A contribution to Dialogue or a Factor of Conflict in Transforming Societies of European Countries The project brought together nine research teams from eight European countries England Estonia France Germany The Netherlands Norway Russia and Spain The research involved interdisciplinary cooperation between specialists in the different academic fields of education religious education sociology political science anthropology psychology theology and religious studies The book offers valuable interpretations and inspirations on the question how the students in the 14 16 year age group in Europe see the ir relevance of religions for dialogue and conflict in their daily lives in the school environment and in society as a whole The young respondents of the quantitative study are clearly aware that the diversity of religious and non religious worldviews is the reality of the European contexts they have to manage within Most of them are convinced that religion must be addressed in schools as it is too important as factor in social life and for the coexistence of people from different cultural and religious backgrounds throughout Europe to be ignored in their own teaching to the greatest effect The book draws on the experience of two leading professionals in primary religious education Maria James and Julian Stern to provide the essential guide to teaching religious education for all trainee and qualified primary teachers Crossings and Crosses Jenny Berglund, Thomas Lundén, Peter Strandbrink, 2015-05-19 Dealing with different regions and cases the contributions in this volume address and critically explore the theme of borders educations and religions in northern Europe As shown in different ways and contrary to popular ideas there seems to be little reason to believe that religious and civic identity formation through public education is becoming less parochial and more culturally open Even where state borders are porous where commerce culture and trade as well as associative personal and social life display stronger liminal traits normative education remains surprisingly national This situation is remarkable and goes against the grain of current notions of both accelerating globalisation and a European regional renaissance The book also takes issue with the foundational tenet that liberal democracies are by definition uninvolved in matters concerning faith and belief Instead an implied conclusion is that secular liberal democracy is less than secular and liberal at least in education which is a major arena for political cultural ethical socialisation as it aims to confer worldviews and frameworks of identity on young people who will eventually become full citizens and bearers sharers of prevailing normative communities

Integrative Religious Education in Europe Wanda Alberts, 2012-02-14 This book is a contribution to the development of the young discipline of the didactics of the Study of Religions Religionswissenschaft in international perspective Integrative religious education refers to education about different religions in classrooms with children of various religious and non religious backgrounds Cornerstones of recent debates about theory and methodology in the academic study of religions and in education are discussed in the first chapter They form the basis of the following analysis and evaluation of current approaches to integrative religious education in Europe with a special focus on England and Sweden Particular attention is paid to the different underlying concepts of religion education and ways of representing religious plurality in these approaches Building on a discussion of the current situation of teaching and learning about religions in schools in Europe in the context of wider cultural social and political debates the book concludes with the suggestion of a framework for integrative religious education in Europe from a perspective that combines insights from the study of religions and education
