Special Issue Security Sector Reconstruction and Reform in Peace

Support Operations Michael Brzoska, 2006

Security Sector Reform in Conflict-Affected Countries Mark Sedra, 2016-11-03 This book examines the evolution impact and future prospects of the Security Sector Reform SSR model in conflict affected countries in the context of the wider debate over the liberal peace project Since its emergence as a concept in the late 1990s SSR has represented a paradigm shift in security assistance from the realist regime centric train and equip approach of the Cold War to a new liberal holistic and people centred model The rapid rise of this model however belied its rather meagre impact on the ground This book critically examines the concept and its record of achievement over the past two decades putting it into the broader context of peace building and state building theory and practice It focuses attention on the most common celebrated and complex setting for SSR conflict affected environments and comparatively examines the application and impacts of donor supported SSR programing in a series of conflict affected countries over the past two decades including Afghanistan Sierra Leone the Democratic Republic of Congo East Timor and Bosnia Herzegovina The broader aim of the book is to better understand how the contemporary SSR model has coalesced over the past two decades and become mainstreamed in international development and security policy and practice This provides a solid foundation to investigate the reasons for the poor performance of the model and to assess its prospects for the future This book will be of much interest to students of international security peacebuilding statebuilding development studies and IR in general
