Geriatrics Hülya Çakmur, 2025-10-29 The physical aging process which results in the aging of cells tissues and organs varies differently in each individual due to the influence of environmental and life factors Medical science has long been working to slow down or even stop and reverse the aging process With the unraveling of the human genetic code efforts to genetically intervene in the aging process have accelerated and animal experiments have proven that this is possible Today many molecules have been proven to prolong a healthy life span Despite all these scientific advances it is a fact of our time that medicine continues to grapple with aging and age related health issues Therefore on the one hand medicine is advancing rapidly in the field of longevity and anti aging and on the other hand it is advancing in providing optimal care to individuals suffering from age related health problems This book provides information on the latest advances in longevity detailing the health challenges and solutions facing today's geriatric population Frailty: Pathophysiology, Phenotype and Patient

Care R.A., Fielding, C., Sieber, B., Vellas, 2015-10-26 The demographic shift in the average age of the population worldwide calls for careful attention to the nutritional and health needs of the elderly Frailty has been associated with increased disability postsurgical complications and increased mortality in a frail state older adults are at greater risk for adverse outcomes including falls and admissions to hospital and nursing homes Despite the strong associations between frailty and subsequent poor outcomes limited attention to this common geriatric condition has been paid in clinical settings Emerging evidence suggests that both behavioral nutrition and physical activity and pharmacologic interventions may be effective in the treatment and prevention of the frailty syndrome The papers in this book address our current understanding of the biological basis clinical presentation and therapeutic interventions that target frailty They highlight the transitional nature of research on the frailty syndrome and identified key unmet needs and areas for future investigation in this expanding field

Psychological Frailty in Ageing: Lifespan Trajectories and Emerging Risks Esperanza Navarro-Pardo, David Facal, Elzbieta Bobrowicz-Campos, 2022-10-21 Role of Sex and Gender in Aging and Longevity Calogero Caruso, 2025-08-06

Role of Sex and Gender in Aging and Longevity aims to shed light on the complex interplay between sex and gender differences in the aging process and longevity of individuals While biological sex differences have long been recognized as influencing various aspects of aging this book includes how gender also plays a significant role in shaping these processes accelerating aging or favoring longevity By acknowledging the influence of both biological and socially constructed factors this book offers a comprehensive understanding of why individuals may experience different aging trajectories and have divergent longevity outcomes This book explores the intricate ways in which gender norms roles and expectations shape individual experiences of aging and delves into the social determinants of health that can interact with biological factors to influence the aging process and longevity outcomes By examining these interactions this book aims to provide a nuanced understanding of the multifaceted nature of aging and longevity and how sex and gender contribute to these complex phenomena laying the groundwork for future aging research and providing significant implications for disease prevention screening diagnosis and treatment of age related conditions Explores the distinct significance of sex and gender and their interrelation with aging and longevity Offers an in depth overview of the sex and gender specific biological and medical aspects of human aging and longevity Provides the tools required to understand the challenges posed by aging and longevity in individuals and how to approach solving them

The Frailty Model Luc Duchateau, Paul Janssen, 2007-10-23

Clustered survival data are encountered in many scientific disciplines including human and veterinary medicine biology epidemiology public health and demography Frailty models provide a powerful tool to analyse clustered survival data In contrast to the large number of research publications on frailty models relatively few statistical software packages contain frailty models It is demanding for statistical practitioners and graduate students to grasp a good knowledge on frailty models from the existing literature This book provides an in depth discussion and explanation of the basics of frailty model methodology for such readers The discussion includes parametric and semiparametric frailty models and accelerated failure time models Common techniques to fit frailty models include the EM algorithm penalised likelihood techniques Laplacian integration and Bayesian techniques More advanced frailty models for hierarchical data are also included Real life examples are used to demonstrate how particular frailty models can be fitted and how the results should be interpreted The programs to fit all the worked out examples in the book are available from the Springer website with most of the programs developed in the freeware packages R and Winbugs The book starts with a brief overview of some basic concepts in classical survival analysis collecting what is needed for the reading on the more complex frailty models

Human Longevity, Individual Life Duration, and the Growth of the Oldest-Old Population Jean-Marie Robine, Eileen M. Crimmins, Shiro Horiuchi, Yi Zeng, 2007-03-21 Old age survival has considerably improved in the second half of the twentieth century Life expectancy in wealthy countries has increased on average from 65 years in 1950 to 76 years in 2005 The rise was more spectacular in some countries the life expectancy for Japanese women rose from 62 years to 86 years during the same period Driven by this longevity extension the population aged 80 and over in those countries has grown fivefold from 8.5 million in 1950 to 44.5 million in 2005 Why has such a substantial extension of human lifespan occurred How long can we live In this book these fundamental questions are explored by experts from such diverse fields as biology medicine epidemiology demography sociology and mathematics they report on recent cutting edge studies about essential issues of human longevity such as evolution of lifespan of species genetics of human longevity reasons for the recent improvement in survival of the elderly medical and behavioral causes of deaths among very old people and social factors of long survival in old age

Frailty Syndrome María Carmen Gómez-Cabrera, José Viña, Leocadio Rodríguez-Mañas, 2025-10-21 Frailty a geriatric syndrome with a defined phenotype was introduced by Linda Fried and Jeremy Walston it is widely cited The importance of this syndrome cannot be overstated Frailty has an enormous relevance in clinical settings and there are clear biological bases behind its phenotype This book covers both biological and clinical aspects including interactions with diseases like diabetes Key Features Summarizes the history and recognition of the Frailty Syndrome Provides an update and summary of a fast growing field Describes how free radical and oxidative stress contributed to current theories Documents the impact that nutrition and physical activity play in the emergence of frailty

Promoting Healthy Aging Across the Lifespan Elena Carrillo-Alvarez, Miriam Rodriguez-Monforte, Jordi Vilaró, Katherine Simone McGilton, 2024-12-26 Worldwide there is a generalized trend toward aged societies Between 2015 and 2050 the proportion of the world's population over 60 years will nearly double from 12% to 22% As life expectancy continues to increase and natality rates lower not only the composition of countries will change but also its health landscape However an increased life expectancy does not necessarily mean a healthy life In most high income countries more than 20% of those years are lived in ill health due to chronic conditions caused by non communicable diseases which compromises functional ability and well being key components of healthy aging In this way not only people's lives but also societal structures are being affected Based on the life course approach to healthy aging aging starts from conception In this regard the promotion of healthy aging requires preventive strategies that enhance capacities during growth and development maintain them for as long as possible after maturity and slow down their rate of decline Moreover considering healthy aging across the lifespan entails focusing on different factors life opportunities and choices that might significantly influence health status lifestyle as well as health and social inequalities in older age and challenges the focus of most research on the topic which exclusively investigates the effect of influences operating in the later stages of life

Frailty Jorge G. Ruiz, Olga Theou, 2024-05-28 This book offers a thorough examination of frailty covering its complexity through sections on foundational concepts pathogenesis research assessment methods management strategies care settings its relation to other chronic conditions and societal implications It provides a deep understanding of frailty's scientific basis advanced assessment tools innovative management and prevention approaches and examines frailty within diverse care settings and in relation to other health conditions By integrating multidisciplinary insights it presents a holistic view of frailty addressing its clinical societal and policy related aspects aiming to enhance well being and inform clinical practitioners educators and policymakers This book can serve as a reference guide with up to date information on frailty in older adults for geriatric medicine physicians primary care clinicians geroscience researchers nurses therapists OT PT ST and social workers

Alif, 2025-01-30 Sarcopenia and frailty known as the modern Giants of Geriatrics are two age related syndromes that have garnered significant attention in the field Sarcopenia is characterized by the progressive loss of skeletal muscle mass and loss of muscle function While frailty is a clinical condition characterized by an excessive vulnerability of the individual to endogenous and exogenous stressors Both syndromes are considered strong predictors of morbidity disability and mortality in older adults and their prevalence varies across different regions and diagnostic tools There is growing recognition of various risk factors associated with sarcopenia and frailty in older adults including malnutrition chronic disease depression sleep disorders teeth loss and cognitive decline And there is the reversibility of returning to a healthy state with appropriate interventions Early intervention through exercise and nutrition can help mitigate the risks associated with sarcopenia and frailty and both syndromes can be effectively managed benefiting both older adults and their families while also reducing dependence on healthcare and social services To support early intervention and reduce disability and hospitalization rates among older adults this research topic welcomes original research articles reviews and opinion pieces that explore the current prevalence the influencing risk factors and prediction models of age related sarcopenia and frailty Early identification and early intervention were important to reverse these geriatrics syndromes In identifying approaches to accurately measure assess and improve sarcopenia and frailty the research topic strives to further substantiate the significance of sarcopenia and frailty in the field of geriatrics medicine and public health
