As both the new government and the FBI seek his services Carr takes a job flying a camera plane for a major Hollywood movie in order to escape the conflict. It soon becomes apparent however that his new employers have more in mind than aerial shots. Jane's All the World's Aircraft, 1966 Flying Review International Including Jane's All the World's Aircraft Supplement, 1963 Reader's Guide to American History Peter J. Aircraft of the Royal Navy David Hobbs, 2024-11-30 This is a comprehensive study of every aircraft type ordered for the Royal Navy since 1908. It includes fixed and rotary wing aircraft, rigid and non-rigid airships, unmanned aircraft and pilotless target aircraft together with many designs that were ordered but not built so that the importance placed on them by the Naval Staff or their potential technological impact on carrier design and operations can be explained. Every type, even unsuccessful single prototypes, is described; the majority are illustrated by photographs, many of which come from the author's own collection and the fifty most significant aircraft have detailed drawings. The Australian and Canadian Fleet Air Arms operated RN aircraft types for many years after their formation and these are included together with other types they have operated subsequently to give a more complete overview. The book describes over 400 different types of aircraft built by over 100 different manufacturers to offer the most detailed coverage of RN aircraft ever produced. Research for the book took over forty years and reference material included Admiralty Archives and an array of material in the public domain including manufacturers' data, individual aircraft pilot's notes and a wealth of published sources. David Hobbs is uniquely well placed to write this book having served in the RN for thirty three years and retired with the rank of Commander He flew both fixed and rotary wing aircraft and his log book contains 2300 flying hours with 807 day and night deck landings He served in seven British aircraft carriers and spent four years within RN Director General Aircraft Department where he was closely involved with Sea Harrier carrier trials and introduced new visual landing aids for night recoveries and liaised with the USN on carrier operating techniques This is his eleventh book for Seaforth Publishing Air Power at the Battlefront Dr Ian Gooderson,2013-05-13 Ian Gooderson presents a study of close air support in World War II with the analysis focusing on the use of tactical air power by British and American forces during the campaigns in Italy and northwestern Europe between 1943 and 1945 Bombs, Cities, and Civilians Conrad C. Crane,1993 As the might and capabilities of American airpower have grown during the last 60 years so has the controversy about its use in the intentional and indiscriminate wartime bombardment of civilians In Bombs Cities and Civilians Conrad Crane maintains that for the most part American airmen in World War II remained committed to precision bombing doctrine Instead of attacking densely populated urban areas simply to erode civilian morale Army Air Forces adhered to a policy that emphasised targeting key industrial and military sites He demonstrates that while the British Germans and Japanese routinely conducted indiscriminate aerial bombardment of enemy cities American airmen consistently stayed with daylight raids against carefully selected targets especially in Europe Daytime precision missions were usually far more dangerous than night area attacks but such Army Air Forces tactics increased bombing efficiency and also reduced the risk of civilian casualties The Journal of the Aeronautical Society of India Aeronautical Society of India,1965
