The Definition of Death Stuart J. Youngner, Robert M. Arnold, Renie Schapiro, 2002-10-15 In the 1980s following the recommendation of a presidential commission all fifty states replaced previous cardiopulmonary definitions of death with one that also included total and irreversible cessation of brain function The Definition of Death Contemporary Controversies is the first comprehensive review of the clinical philosophical and public policy implications of our effort to redefine the change in status from living person to corpse Edited by Stuart J Youngner

Robert M Arnold and Renie Schapiro the book is the result of a collaboration among internationally recognized scholars from the fields of medicine philosophy social science law and religious studies Throughout the contributors struggle to reconcile inconsistencies and gaps in our traditional understanding of death and to respond to the public's concern that in the determination of death under current policies patients' interests may be compromised by the demand for organ retrieval Their questions about the philosophical and scientific bases for determining death lead inevitably to more profound questions of social policy Acknowledging that the definition of death is as much a social construct as a scientific one the authors in their analysis of these issues provide a comprehensive and provocative source of information for students and scholars alike

Gerontologic Palliative Care Nursing Marianne Matzo, Deborah Witt Sherman, 2004 Older adults afflicted with progressive eventually fatal chronic illness have care needs and personal priorities that tend to focus on living well despite the disease At this phase of life the wish is for symptom relief maintenance of activities concern for family and preparation for death and bereavement When progressive disability marks the last months and years the patient should remain focused on living life as fully as possible until its end Major advances in enabling function and managing symptoms have taken place in the past decade or two People who once would have suffered terribly from pain can now expect to be comfortable with aggressive pain and symptom management The challenge in today's nursing practice is that nurses work in a care system that was not designed to deal with the challenges posed by large numbers of persons coming to the end of life at the same time Nurses are not adequately prepared to provide quality compassionate care for persons who are old sick and eventually dying Matzo and Sherman's new book provides a valuable resource for practicing nurses at all levels in the health care continuum who care for older adults at the end of life The goal of the book is to enhance quality of life for older adult patients and families who have progressive incurable illnesses Focuses on quality end of life nursing care and its impact from a palliative care perspective Addresses active and compassionate care therapies to enhance physical psychological social and spiritual domains of life Explores the spiritual social and psychological aspects of key nursing competencies at the end of life and progresses to the more evidence based information and interventions related to pain symptom management disease progression and care of the dying elder Includes Case Studies which help put the content into a more humanistic perspective Provides Evidence Based Practice boxes that apply current research to findings

Strange Bedfellows Ben A. Rich, 2007-05-08 The pervasive influence of law on medical practice and clinical bioethics is often noted with a combination of exasperation and lamentation Physicians and non physician bioethicists generally speaking consider the willingness of courts legislatures and regulatory agencies to insinuate themselves into clinical practice and medical research to be a distinctly negative aspect of contemporary American society They are quick to point out that their colleagues in other Western developed nations are not similarly afflicted and that the situation which obtains elsewhere is highly preferable to the legalization and purported over regulation of medicine that has taken place in the United States during the last fifty years In this book I offer a decidedly different perspective It is admittedly not entirely without personal and professional bias Prior to becoming a full time academic teaching bioethics in the setting of an academic medical center I was for nearly 20 years an attorney specializing in health law Even after earning a doctorate in philosophy I was frequently considered to be the resident lawyer on the bioethics faculty much more frequently looked to for my insights on the law than my perspective as one who had formally studied moral philosophy and applied ethics I note this not out of a sense of frustration or disappointment but as confirmation that even among physicians and non physician bioethicists there is widespread recognition that the law does have important contributions to make in assessing the practice of medicine and the conduct of medical research

Evidence-Based Geriatric Nursing Protocols for Best Practice Deanna Gray-Miceli, 2007-11-16 Designated a Doody's Core Title As a gerontological clinical educator research nurse I will often use this as a reference The format and the content are good and the explanations of how to best use the evidence simplify the process of sifting through mountains of information to figure the best practice Score 97 5 stars Doody's This third edition holds the promise of bringing yet another level of depth and sophistication to understanding the best practices for assessment interventions and anticipated outcomes in our care of older adults Evidence Based Geriatric Nursing Protocols for Best Practice is intended to bring the most current evidence based protocols known to experts in geriatric nursing to the audience of students both graduate and undergraduate practitioners at the staff level from novice to expert clinicians in specialty roles educators care managers and advanced practice nurses and nursing leaders of all levels We owe a debt of gratitude to the many authors and the editors for bringing this work to us from the preface by Susan Bowar Ferres PhD RN CNAA BC Senior Vice President Clinical Nurse Specialist Durham Veterans Administration Medical Center
