Restating The Theory Of Education:

The Aims of Education Restated (International Library of the Philosophy of Education Volume 22) John White, 2010-02-25 John White's study is the most substantial work on what the aims of education should be since Whitehead's Aims of Education of 1929. It draws on material not only from schools and colleges but also from the broader educative or miseducative nature of the ethos of society and some of its major institutions. Sifting the different views about aims which are now prevalent and circulating in the world of education, he integrates the more defensible of them into an articulated set of positive recommendations. The study takes a broadly philosophical and non-technical stand; it is written to help practitioners orient themselves in what is often bewildering territory at a time when the question of what the aims of education ought to be has acquired a new urgency for politicians and educational administrators as well as for those directly involved in educational institutions: head teachers and their staff. Philosophy of Science, Cognitive Psychology, and Educational Theory and Practice Richard Alan Duschl, Richard J. Hamilton, 1992-01-01. This edited volume extends existing discussions among philosophers of science, cognitive psychologists, and educational researchers on the restructuring of scientific knowledge and the domain of science education. This exchange of ideas across disciplinary fields raises fundamental issues and provides frameworks that help to focus educational research programs, curriculum development efforts, and teacher training programs.

The book begins with an introduction to descriptive and inferential statistics and then proceeds to acquaint readers with the various functions for working with quantitative data in the Microsoft Excel environment, such as spreadsheet navigation, sorting, and filtering, and creating pivot tables. Subsequent chapters treat the procedures that are commonly employed when working with data across various fields of social science research, including single sample tests, repeated measure tests, independent t tests, one-way ANOVA, and factorial ANOVA, correlation, bivariate regression, and chi-square. Multiple regression. Individual chapters are devoted to specific procedures, each ending with a lab exercise that highlights the importance of that procedure by posing a research question, examining the question through its application in Excel and SPSS, and concluding with a brief research report that outlines key findings drawn from the results. Real-world examples and data from modern educational research are used throughout the book, and a related Web site
