Restorative Justice and the Law Lode Walgrave,2012-12-06

Restorative justice has developed rapidly from being a barely known term to occupying a central role in debates on the future of criminal justice But as it has become part of the mainstream of debate so new tensions and issues have emerged One of the most crucial issues is to find an appropriate combination of restorative justice based essentially on informal deliberation and the law The purpose of this book is to analyse the several dimensions to this issue It explores the social and ethical foundations of restorative justice seeks to position it in relation to both rehabilitation and punishment and examines the possibility of developing and incorporating restorative justice as the mainstream response to crime in terms of the principles of constitutional democracy Amongst the questions it addresses are the following How are informal processes to be juxtaposed with formal procedures What is the appropriate relationship between voluntarism and coercion How can the procedures and practices of restorative justice be combined with legal standards safeguards and precepts How can one balance restorative responses with legally sanctioned punishment In this book a distinguished team of contributors consider this crucial set of relationships between restorative justice and the law building upon papers and discussions at the fifth international restorative justice conference in Leuven Belgium in September 2001 restorative justice has grown rapidly throughout the world this book addresses the central issue of relationship of restorative justice to existing law and legal systems chapters from world leading authorities

To Right Historical Wrongs Carmela Murdocca, 2013-10-15 Following World War II liberal nation states sought to address injustices of the past In keeping with trends in other countries Canada's government began to consider its own implication in various past wrongs and in the late twentieth century it began to implement reparative justice initiatives for historically marginalized people Yet despite this shift there are more Indigenous and racialized people in Canadian prisons now than at any other time in history In To Right Historical Wrongs Carmela Murdocca brings together the paradigm of reparative justice and the study of incarceration to examine this disconnect between the political motivations for amending historical injustices and the vastly disproportionate reality of the justice system a troubling reality that is often ignored Drawing on detailed examination of legal cases parliamentary debates government reports media commentary and community sources Murdocca presents a new perspective on discussions of culture based sentencing in an age of both mass incarceration and historical amendment
