Magic Lands John M. Findlay, 1993-09-22 The American West conjures up images of pastoral tranquility and wide open spaces but by 1970 the Far West was the most urbanized section of the country Exploring four intriguing cityscapes Disneyland Stanford Industrial Park Sun City and the 1962 Seattle World s Fair John Findlay shows how each created a sense of cohesion and sustained people s belief in their superior urban environment This first book length study of the urban West after 1940 argues that Westerners deliberately tried to build cities that differed radically from their eastern counterparts In 1954 Walt Disney began building the world s first theme park using Hollywood s movie making techniques The creators of Stanford Industrial Park were more hesitant in their approach to a conceptually organized environment but by the mid 1960s the Park was the nation s prototypical research park and the intellectual downtown for the high technology region that became Silicon Valley In 1960 on the outskirts of Phoenix Del E Webb built Sun City the largest most influential retirement community in the United States Another innovative cityscape arose from the 1962 Seattle World s Fair and provided a futuristic somewhat fanciful vision of modern life These four became magic lands that provided an antidote to the apparent chaos of their respective urban milieus Exemplars of a new lifestyle they are landmarks on the changing cultural landscape of postwar America

An All-Consuming Century Gary Cross, 2000-09-14 The unqualified victory of consumerism in America was not a foregone conclusion The United States has traditionally been the home of the most aggressive and often thoughtful criticism of consumption including Puritanism Prohibition the simplicity movement the 60s hippies and the consumer rights movement But at the dawn of the twenty first century not only has American consumerism triumphed there isn t even an ism left to challenge it An All Consuming Century is a rich history of how market

goods came to dominate American life over that remarkable hundred years between 1900 and 2000 and why for the first time in history there are no practical limits to consumerism By 1930 a distinct consumer society had emerged in the United States in which the taste speed control and comfort of goods offered new meanings of freedom thus laying the groundwork for a full scale ideology of consumer s democracy after World War II From the introduction of Henry Ford s Model T so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one and the innovations in selling that arrived with the department store window displays self service the installment plan to the development of new arenas for spending amusement parks penny arcades baseball parks and dance halls Americans embraced the new culture of commercialism with reservations However Gary Cross shows that even the Depression the counterculture of the 1960s and the inflation of the 1970s made Americans more materialistic opening new channels of desire and offering opportunities for more innovative and aggressive marketing The conservative upsurge of the 1980s and 90s indulged in its own brand of self aggrandizement by promoting unrestricted markets The consumerism of today thriving and largely unchecked no longer brings families and communities together instead it increasingly divides and isolates Americans Consumer culture has provided affluent societies with peaceful alternatives to tribalism and class war Cross writes and it has fueled extraordinary economic growth The challenge for the future is to find ways to revive the still valid portion of the culture of constraint and control the overpowering success of the all consuming twentieth century Journal of Human Services Abstracts ,1984 Growing Old in America Beth Hess,2020-03-02 Modern industrial societies are characterized by long term declines in fertility and steady increases in life expectancy Together these trends result in an aging population The United States is no exception since 1969 the median age has risen from 29 4 to a projected 36 4 in the year 2000 This fourth edition of the standard reader on the sociology of aging has been completely revised with 90 percent new material to reflect new information and new issues in this rapidly developing field Students and practicing professionals will find it a lively accessible overview Optimizing Housing for the Elderly Leon A Pastalan,2014-03-18 Discover the diverse range of housing options available to the elderly population with this excellent new book This timely volume addresses the public policy and design and development issues that must necessarily face those concerned with housing our steadily growing elderly population The chapters cover a broad spectrum of populations including elderly people in aging ghettos in suburbia continuing care retirement community residents full time recreational vehicle travelers and the homeless elderly The authoritative contributors go beyond descriptions of wide ranging elderly housing options and delve into the central themes that influence them all Optimizing Housing for the Elderly explores some common considerations such as personal security food and medical services independence and social interaction that are important determining factors when selecting a style of housing and addresses economic questions including advice on reducing costs in popular continuing care retirement communities currently inaccessible to lower income elderly people Professionals involved in any aspect of housing for the elderly will benefit from the information in this

Elderly People and the Environment Irwin Altman,M. Powell Lawton,Joachim F. Wohlwill,2013-06-29 The present volume in our series follows the format of the immediately in dealing with a topical theme of considerable importance in the environment and behavior field In view of current and projected demographic trends it is a certainty that a broad ranging set of issues concerned with the elderly and the physical environment will continue to be of focal pertinence if not of increasing importance in the remaining decades of this century The present volume also follows in the tradition of earlier volumes in the series in being eclectic with respect to content theory and methodology and in including contributions from a variety of disciplines such as anthropology economics psychology geography and urban and regional planning To have encompassed the whole array of disciplines and topics in this emerging field in a single volume would have been impossible We trust that the sample of contributions that we have selected is provocative and that it will illustrate the range of problems and topics and point to promising areas of study and analysis We are pleased to have M Powell Lawton as a guest co editor for this volume His broad ranging expertise perceptive judgment and fine editorial talents have contributed enormously to the volume Becoming an Environmental Psychologist Lindsay J.
