

Selected bibliography of Memory Studies

Eric Brian and Marie Jaisson

The current international research on the social phenomena of memory and the conditions explained in the general introduction of a sort of globalisation of the body of references are two factors explaining both the extent of the bibliography presented in all the articles in this issue and the heterogeneity of these references. It seemed thus useful to sum up in one list the different references that are, so to speak, common to all articles of this issue. Each article has also its own list of references with its own specificities. The combination of this list of references with those provided by Erll and Nünning (2008), Olick, Vinitzky-Seroussi and Levy (2011), and by Gensburger (2011) will give those who want to explore these issues in greater depth a comprehensive state of the relevant work, old and new.
