The

Wars of the Bruces Colm McNamee, 2012-08-25 The Bruces of fourteenth century Scotland were formidable and enthusiastic warriors Whilst much has been written about events as they happened in Scotland during the chaotic years of the first part of the fourteenth century England's war with Robert the Bruce profoundly affected the whole of the British Isles Scottish raiders struck deep into the heartlands of Yorkshire and Lancashire Robert's younger brother Edward Bruce was proclaimed King of Ireland and came close to subduing the country the Isle of Man was captured and a Welsh sea port was raided and in the North Sea Scots allied with German and Flemish pirates to cripple England's vital wool trade and disrupt its war effort Packed with detail and written with a strong and involving narrative thread this is the first book to link up the various theatres of war and discuss the effect of the wars of the Bruces outside Scotland

Boardman, Susan Foran, 2015 Fresh approaches to one of the most important poems from medieval Scotland John Barbour's Bruce an account of the deeds of Robert I of Scotland 1306-29 and his companions during the so called wars of independence between England and Scotland is an important and complicated text Composed c 1375 during the reign of Robert's grandson Robert II the first Stewart king of Scotland 1371-90 the poem represents the earliest surviving complete literary work of any length produced in Inglis in late medieval Scotland and is usually regarded as the starting point for any worthwhile discussion of the language and literature of Early Scots It has also been used as an essential historical source for the career and character of that iconic monarch Robert I But its narrative defies easy categorisation and has been variously interpreted as a romance a verse history an epic or a chivalric biography This collection re-assesses the form and purpose of Barbour's great poem It considers the poem from a variety of perspectives re-examining the literary historical cultural and intellectual contexts in which it was produced and offering important new insights Steve Boardman is a Reader in History at the University of Edinburgh Susan Foran currently an independent scholar researches chivalry war and the idea of nation in late medieval historical writing Contributors Steve Boardman Dauvit Broun Michael Brown Susan Foran Chris Given Wilson Theo van Heijnsbergen Rhiannon Purdie Birn Tjalling Diana B Tyson Emily Wingfield
