Ashmore, Lee Jussim, 1997-05-15 Self and identity have been important yet volatile notions in psychology since its formative years as a scientific discipline. Recently psychologists and other social scientists have begun to develop and refine the conceptual and empirical tools for studying the complex nature of self. This volume presents a critical analysis of fundamental issues in the scientific study of self and identity. These chapters go much farther than merely taking stock of recent scientific progress. World class social scientists from psychology, sociology and anthropology present new and contrasting perspectives on these fundamental issues. Topics include the personal versus social nature of self and identity, multiplicity of selves versus unity of identity and the societal, cultural and historical formation and expression of selves. These creative contributions provide new insights into the major issues involved in understanding self and identity. As the first volume in the Rutgers Series on Self and Social Identity, the book sets the stage for a productive second century of scientific analysis and heightened understanding of self and identity. Scholars and advanced students in the social sciences will find this highly informative and provocative reading. Dr. Richard D. Ashmore is a professor and Dr. Lee Jussim is an associate professor in the Department of Psychology at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. Feminism & Autobiography Tess Coslett, Celia Lury, Penny Summerfield, 2002-01-04 Featuring essays by leading feminist scholars from a variety of disciplines, this key text explores the latest developments in autobiographical studies. The collection is structured around the interlinked concepts of genre, inter-subjectivity and memory. Whilst exemplifying the very different levels of autobiographical activity going on in feminist studies, the contributions chart a movement from autobiography as genre to autobiography as cultural practice and from the analysis of autobiographical texts to a preoccupation with autobiography as method. Non-Western Perspectives on Human Communication Min-Sun Kim, 2002-07-23 What it means to be a self and a self communicating and being in a particular culture are key issues interwoven throughout Min Sun Kim's impressive text. Non-Western Perspectives on Human Communication goes beyond cultural descriptions or instructions on adapting to specific cultures; the author interrogates the very core assumptions underlying the study of human communication and challenges longstanding individualistic Western models on which much intercultural research is based. Kim proposes a non-Western way of conceptualizing identity or the self, the cornerstone of cultural research, illuminating how traditional Western and non-Western views can be blended into a broader, more realistic understanding of cultures and communication. Grounding her work in a thorough knowledge of the literature, she challenges students and researchers alike to reexamine their approach to intercultural study. Features: Interrogates embedded assumptions about the traditional Western study of human communication with stunning thought-provoking insight. Illuminates issues surrounding culture and identity formation and challenges the reader to examine not only the study of human communication but its engagement in everyday life. Informs complex academic theory with stellar writing, poignant examples and careful analysis. Invites scholars and students to explore and integrate a long overdue multicultural perspective on human communication. About the Author: Min Sun Kim, Ph.D.

Michigan State University is Professor in the Department of Speech at the University of Hawaii at Manoa Her research focus is the role of cognition in conversational styles among people of different cultural orientations She is currently serving as an Associate Editor for Communication Reports and also as a reviewer for various communication journals Human Behavior Theory for Social Work Practice Terry Koenig,Rick Spano,John Thompson,2019-03-06 Human Behavior Theory for Social Work Practice provides an in depth examination of human behavior theories and helps students apply each theory to social work practice Authors Terry Koenig Rick Spano and John Thompson cover a broad spectrum of theories including ecological psychological and sociopolitical before applying them to a wide range of case examples that represent different stages across the human lifespan Drawing from their extensive knowledge and experience in social work practice and teaching the authors also feature scholarly research and writing to support the understanding of the theoretical overview in each chapter The Course of Gay and Lesbian Lives Bertram J. Cohler,Robert M. Galatzer-Levy,2000-08 The authors argue that there is little support for assuming that homosexuality has a biological basis Recognizing the many pathways that lead to same gender sexual orientation the authors conclude that the cause is much less important than understanding the meaning of being homosexual The Parental Experience in Midlife Carol D. Ryff,Marsha Mailick Seltzer,1996 Most adults experience parenthood But the longest period of the parental experience when children grow into adolescence and young adulthood and parents themselves are not yet elderly is the least understood In this groundbreaking volume distinguished scholars from anthropology demography economics psychology social work and sociology explore the uncharted years of midlife parenthood The authors employ a rich array of theory and methods to address how the parental experience affects the health well being and development of individuals Collectively they look at the time when parents watch offspring grow into adulthood and begin to establish adult to adult relationships with their children With a strong emphasis on the diversity of midlife parenting including sociodemographic variations and specific parent or child characteristics such as single parenting or raising a child with a disability this volume presents for the first time the complex factors that influence the quality of the midlife parenting experience The Oxford Handbook of Identity Development Kate C. McLean,Moin U. Syed,2015 Identity is defined in many different ways in various disciplines in the social sciences and sub disciplines within psychology The developmental psychological approach to identity is characterized by a focus on developing a sense of the self that is temporally continuous and unified across the different life spaces that individuals inhabit Erikson proposed that the task of adolescence and young adulthood was to define the self by answering the question Who Am I There have been many advances in theory and research on identity development since Erikson s writing over fifty years ago and the time has come to consolidate our knowledge and set an agenda for future research The Oxford Handbook of Identity Development represents a turning point in the field of identity development research Various and disparate groups of researchers are brought together to debate extend and apply Erikson s theory to contemporary problems and empirical issues The result is a comprehensive and state of the art examination of identity development that pushes the field in provocative new directions. Scholars of identity development, adolescent and adult development and related fields as well as graduate students, advanced undergraduates and practitioners will find this to be an innovative, unique and exciting look at identity development.
