The Living Church ,1911 Aspiring Saints Anne Jacobson Schutte,2003-05-22 Winner of an Honorable Mention in the Professional Scholarly Publishing Awards given by the Association of American Publishers Between 1618 and 1750 sixteen people nine women and seven men were brought to the attention of the ecclesiastical authorities in Venice because they were reporting visions revelations and special privileges from heaven All were investigated and most were put on trial by the Holy Office of the Inquisition on a charge of heresy under various rubrics that might be translated as pretense of holiness Anne Jacobson Schutte looks closely at the institutional cultural and religious contexts that gave rise to the phenomenon of visionaries in Venice To explain the worldview of the prosecutors as well as the prosecuted Schutte examines inquisitorial trial dossiers theological manuals spiritual treatises and medical works that shaped early modern Italians understanding of the differences between orthodox Catholic belief and heresy In particular she demonstrates that socially constructed assumptions about males and females affected how the Inquisition treated the accused parties The women charged with heresy were non elites who generally claimed to experience ecstatic visions and receive messages the men were usually clergy who responded to these women without claiming any supernatural experience themselves Because they should have known better the men were judged more harshly by authorities Placing the events in a context larger than just the inquisitorial process Aspiring Saints sheds new light on the history of religion the dynamics of gender relations and the ambiguous boundary between sincerity and pretense in early modern Italy The Gospel Message ,1922 The Christian Advocate ,1908 Christian Mummification Ken Jeremiah,2014-01-10 A mention of mummification immediately brings to mind the ancient Egyptians but the Roman Catholic Church has long used the practice to preserve notable members of its faith In Italy alone more than 300 preserved bodies appear on display in churches and cathedrals the mummified remains of saints priests martyrs and other high ranking Roman Catholic officials This study explores the history of Roman Catholic mummification which continues to this day in the use of New Kingdom Egyptian mummification procedures on popes It explores various types of mummies the connections between the Catholic Church and Egyptian religious practices the treatment of the dead by other faiths and the veritable cult that has arisen in Italy surrounding the saints whose bodies are preserved By examining this unusual practice from both scientific and cultural perspectives the book sheds light on a relatively unstudied aspect of the Roman Catholic faith The Devotion and Promotion of Stigmatics in Europe, c. 1800-1950 Tine Van Osselaer,Andrea Graus,Leonardo Rossi,Kristof Smeyers,2020-10-12 In the nineteenth century a new type of mystic emerged in Catholic Europe While cases of stigmatisation had been reported since the thirteenth century this era witnessed the development of the stigmatic young women who attracted widespread interest thanks to the appearance of physical stigmata To understand the popularity of these stigmatics we need to regard them as the saints and religious celebrities of their time With their miraculous bodies they fit contemporary popular ideas if not necessarily those of the Church of what sanctity was As knowledge about them spread via modern media and their fame became marketable they developed into religious celebrities Herald and Presbyter ,1905 The Christian Union ,1889
