Bess, Jay R. Dee, 2023-07-03 Now available in paperback this two volume work is intended to help readers develop powerful new ways of thinking about organizational principles and apply them to policy making and management in colleges and universities The book is written with two audiences in mind administrative and faculty leaders in institutions of higher learning and students both doctoral and Master s degree studying to become upper level administrators leaders and policy makers in higher education It systematically presents a range of theories that can be applied to many of the difficult management situations that college and university leaders encounter It provides them with the theoretical background to knowledgeably evaluate the many new ideas that emerge in the current literature and in workshops and conferences The purpose is to help leaders develop their own effective management style and approaches and feel confident that their actions are informed by appropriate theory and knowledge of the latest research in the field Without theory organizational leaders are forced to treat each problem that they encounter as unique as if it were a first time occurrence While leaders may have some experience with a particular issue their solutions are usually not informed by the accumulated wisdom of others who have already encountered and resolved similar situations The authors approach the theory of the organization and administration of colleges and universities from three quite different perspectives or paradigms each relying on different assumptions about the reality of organizational life in colleges and universities The positivist paradigm primarily an omnibus systems theory integrates the chapters into a comprehensive yet easily accessible whole Social constructionism the second paradigm is introduced in each chapter to illuminate the difficulty of seeking and finding meaningful consensus on problems and policies while also addressing important ethical issues that tend to be overlooked in leadership thought and action The third paradigm postmodernism draws attention to difficulties of logic and communication under the constraints of strictly linear thinking that authorities at all levels attempt to impose on organizations This multiple paradigm approach enables readers to become more cognizant of their own assumptions how they may differ from those of others in their organization and how those differences may both create difficulties in resolving problems and expand the range of alternatives considered in organizational decision making The book offers readers the tools to balance the real world needs to succeed in today's challenging and competitive environment with the social and ethical aspirations of all its stakeholders and society at large The authors aim is to elucidate how administration can be made more efficient and effective through rational decision making while also respecting humanistic values This approach highlights a range of phenomena that require attention if the institution is ultimately to be considered successful Also available Volume 1 The State of the System Two volume set the Future Robert Richard Spillane, Paul Regnier, 1998 American education has been and will continue to be a high profile subject and in the end it is school superintendents who carry the weight of the effort when it comes to school improvement. This book provides an inside perspective on the superintendency today and where it is headed tomorrow with a focus on practical action. Case studies developed around actual school systems highlight key issues in this must have book. The School Principal Theodore J. Kowalski, 2010-08-14 Over the past two decades efforts to improve schools have significantly modified role expectations for principals. Today school level administrators are expected to be both visionary leaders and competent managers. Based on the conviction that administration is an amalgam of leadership and management, The School Principal emphasizes the need for practitioners to apply conceptual skills to make what to do decisions, to apply technical skills to make how to do decisions, and to apply relational skills to engage in democratic decision making. Kowalski frames the book with a discussion of the nature of schools, the roles of principals, and their need to improve schools. The book then provides a balanced treatment of leadership and management, covering issues of personal behavior, instructional leadership, relationship building, issues of finances, facilities, personnel management, pupil services, and maintaining safe schools. The text closes with a discussion of the vital aspects of practice for contemporary principals, addressing problem solving, collaborative change strategies, and personal commitment to being a principal. Special Features: Vignettes introduce the subject matter in the context of common challenges faced by practitioners; Knowledge Based Questions and Skill Based Activities prompt readers to engage with and reflect on the chapter content. The School Principal aligns with the Educational Leadership Consortium Council ELCC Standards. Treating principals as concurrently visionary leaders and competent managers, this excellent text addresses the needs of aspiring and practicing principals, providing the tools to build effective and efficient schools.

Globalization and the Challenges of Public Administration Haroon A. Khan, 2017-12-12 This book is an attempt to understand the challenges of globalization and governance in the public sector. Written from the perspectives of both developed and developing countries, it uses governance and public administration interchangeably to argue that the tasks of implementation require the cooperation of both the public and private sectors, especially in a rapidly globalizing landscape. It then utilizes statistical analyses to investigate the challenges of globalization in managing human resources, ethics, and accountability, sustainability, e-governance, and leadership in the public sector. Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher-Learner Partnerships Nair, Pradeep, Keppell, Michael James, Lim, Chee Leong, Mari, Tamil Salvi, Hassan, Nurhanim, 2020-12-11 Empowering learners for life requires a fundamental shift in higher education curriculum design. New priorities, pedagogies, technologies, spaces, and assessment strategies are required to enable learners to take ownership of their learning. Student-centeredness concepts are still prescriptive in nature, as most decisions on curriculum, assessment, teaching, and learning approaches are still teacher-centric. Teachers are developing student-centered learning environments without the involvement of the learners in the planning, decision making, and/or design process. In addition, some lecturers are still practicing the traditional approaches of content delivery and conventional assessment methods rather than experimenting with innovative practices suited for student centered approaches Therefore there is an ongoing need for research focused on the importance and effectiveness of a paradigm shift in education that involves student teacher partnerships fueled by innovative teaching and learning designs where students take an active role and contribute as partners in learning Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher Learner Partnerships captures experiences and evidence among teachers in exploring the possibility of active student participation in curriculum design delivery and assessment through teacher learner partnership The chapters address issues of teacher learner partnerships in designing the learning environment and how student centered methods create resilient adaptable and future capable learners While highlighting topics within this scope such as learner autonomy learning performance self efficacy and teaching pedagogy this book is ideally intended for teachers administrators teacher educators practitioners stakeholders researchers academicians and students interested in issues related to the teacher learner partnership
