Making School Reform Work:

Making School Reform Work Paul T. Hill, James Harvey, 2004-09-30 Bringing change to our public school system is hard and the current system of education governance creates barriers that can make that reform even harder Here six authorities in public education discuss how local philanthropies can overcome them even if school districts cannot Making School Reform Work identifies new institutions that can be created by foundations and civic groups to remedy deficiencies in local school governance formulate bold reforms and guarantee implementation These institutions include incubators for starting new schools independent data analysis centers public private partnerships for recruitment and training of school leaders and new ways of funding and managing school facilities The contributors are Sarah Brooks Carleton College Michael DeArmond University of Washington Marguerite Roza University of Washington and Abigail Winger Milwaukee consultant

Making School Reform Work Robert J. Sternberg, 2000 Discusses school reform in terms first of the school wanting to change Making Schools Work Cheryl L. Fagnano, 2019-03-11 Beginning with the fundamental and essential question How do we improve schools prominent education theorists and practitioners examine the imperative of education reform They confront and analyze the pressing need for effective systematic ways to improve education in order to ensure competent students and graduates and they offer numerous innovative ideas and models for reform The discussions in this book are the fruits of the 1992 Milken Family Foundation National Educator Awards Retreat Committed to recognizing the contributions of educators the annual conference advances professional development and celebrates publicly professional achievement Addressed in this volume are such urgent and far reaching issues as enrichment versus remedial strategies for at risk students educators responses to extra education demands creative leadership among practitioners and the crucial role of educator awards Practitioners policymakers and anyone wanting to stay current with the state of American education will find this useful and valuable reading Making Schools Work Eric A. Hanushek, 2010-12-01 Educational reform is a big business in the United States Parents educators and policymakers generally agree that something must be done to improve schools but the consensus ends there The myriad of reform documents and policy discussions that have appeared over the past decade have not helped to pinpoint exactly what should be done The case for investment in education is an economic one schooling improves the productivity and earnings of individuals and promotes stronger economic growth and better functioning of society Recent trends in schooling have however lessened the value of society s investments as costs have risen dramatically while student performance has stayed flat or even fallen The task is to improve performance while controlling costs This book is the culmination of extensive discussions among a panel of economists led by Eric Hanushek They conclude that economic considerations have been entirely absent from the development of educational policies and that economic reality is sorely needed in discussions of new policies The book outlines an improvement plan that emphasizes changing incentives in schools and gathering information about effective approaches Available research and analysis demonstrates that current central decisionmaking has worked poorly Concentrating on inputs such as pupil teacher ratios or teacher graduate degrees appears quite inferior to systems that directly reward performance Nonetheless since experience with such alternatives is very limited a program of extensive evaluation appears to be in order Attempts to institute radical change on the basis of currently available information involve substantial risks of failure Many people today find proposals such as charter schools expanded use of merit pay or educational vouchers to be appealing Yet there is little evidence of their effectiveness and widespread adoption of these proposals is sure to run into substantial problems of im

Making Schools Work Barbara Bruns, Deon Filmer, Harry Anthony Patrinos, 2011 This book is about the threats to education quality in the developing world that cannot be explained by lack of resources It reviews the observed phenomenon of service delivery failures in public education cases where programs and policies increase the inputs to education but do not produce effective services where it counts in schools and classrooms It documents what we know about the extent and costs of such failures across low and middle income countries And it further develops the conceptual model posited in the World Development Report 2004 that a root cause of low quality and inequitable public services not only in education is the weak accountability of providers to both their supervisors and clients The central focus of the book however is a new story It is that developing countries are increasingly adopting innovative strategies to attack these problems Drawing on new evidence from 22 rigorous impact evaluations across 11 developing countries this book examines how three key strategies to strengthen accountability relationships in developing country school systems have affected school enrollment completion and student learning The book reviews the motivation and global context for education reforms aimed at strengthening provider accountability It provides the rationale and synthesizes the evidence on the impacts of three key lines of reform 1 policies that use the power of information to strengthen the ability of clients of education services students and their parents to hold providers accountable for results 2 policies that promote school based management that is increase schools autonomy to make key decisions and control resources often empowering parents to play a larger role 3 teacher incentives reforms that specifically aim at making teachers more accountable for results either by making contract tenure dependent on performance or offering performance linked pay The book summarizes the lessons learned draws cautious conclusions about possible complementarities across different types of accountability focused reforms if they are implemented in tandem considers issues related to scaling up reform efforts and the political economy of reform and suggests directions for future work

Making School Reform Work, 1922 The Graveyard of School Reform William L. Fikkins, 2015-06-16 The Graveyard of School Reform Why the Resistance to Change and New Ideas explores the critical role resistance plays in defeating valued programs for students parents and staff It is time for education reformers to face the hard truths about the skilled and destructive forces of resisters and to learn that good ideas and calls for change are not enough Reformers need to learn how to overcome these entrenched forces and muster new skills with the will to win courage and the persistence

required Resistance has been given little attention for far too long considering the huge cost and the loss of programs we desperately need Fibkins argues that reformers often accept defeat when they should be discovering new ways to win As an education reformer Fibkins has observed far too many necessary programs meet an untimely death due to the naivety of reformers By reviewing lessons learned from other failed reforms and analyzing successful reforms Fibkins new book addresses issues and presents doable models for reformers to succeed and deliver what administrators staff parents students and community members need to make their schools the best they can be American School Reform Joseph P. McDonald, Cities and Schools Research Group, 2014-04-22 Dissecting twenty years of educational politics in our nation s largest cities American School Reform offers one of the clearest assessments of school reform as it has played out in our recent history Joseph P McDonald and his colleagues evaluate the half billion dollar Annenberg Challenge launched in 1994 alongside other large scale reform efforts that have taken place in New York Chicago Philadelphia and the San Francisco Bay Area They look deeply at what school reform really is how it works how it fails and what differences it can make nonetheless McDonald and his colleagues lay out several interrelated ideas in what they call a theory of action space Frequently education policy gets so ambitious that implementing it becomes a near impossibility Action space however is what takes shape when talented educators leaders and reformers guide the social capital of civic leaders and the financial capital of governments foundations corporations and other backers toward true results Exploring these extraordinary collaborations through their lifespans and their influences on future efforts the authors provide political hope that reform efforts can work and that our schools can be made better Resources in Education ,2001 The Encyclopedia of Middle Grades Education Steven B. Betts, Paul T. Hill, 2010-05-16

Charter schools offer something that public school systems parents and teachers need a way to experiment with alternative ways of teaching motivating students organizing schools using technology and employing teachers While people came down on both sides of support for or against charter schools everyone was surprised by how difficult it was to assess charter school performance The first part of this book focuses on how to improve estimates of charter schools performance especially their benefits to students who attend them the second part suggests how policymakers can learn more about charter schools and make better use of evidence The editors and authors suggest ways states and localities can improve the quality of data on which charter school studies are based and trace some of the ways charter school research influences policy

Making School Reform Work James Harvey, 2004 This text identifies roles for foundations and civic groups in defining strategies for big city school reform and in ensuring that promised changes are implemented According to the contributors the current system of public education governance prevents creation of reform strategies that are bold enough to transform a troubled school system It is also unable to sustain any consistent line of action long enough for it to work The governance system also leaves critical issues to chance such as the freedom of schools to select staff make strategic use of funds and allocate time The contributors assert that nongovernmental institutions can remedy these deficiencies formulating bold strategies and making sure they are implemented To accomplish these ends the authors suggest the establishment of several independent institutions to support the reform of big city schools

Choices and Challenges Priscilla Wohlstetter, Joanna Smith, Caitlin C. Farrell, 2013-03-01 As charter schools enter their third decade research in this key sector remains overwhelmingly contradictory and confused Many studies are narrowly focused some do not meet the standards for high quality academic research In this definitive work Wohlstetter and her colleagues isolate and distill the high quality research on charter schools to identify the contextual and operational factors that influence these schools performances The authors examine the track record of the charter sector in light of the wide range of goals set for these schools in state authorizing legislation at the classroom level the level of the school community and system wide In particular they show how the evolution of the charter movement has shaped research questions and findings By highlighting what we know about the conditions for success in charter schools the authors make a significant contribution to current debates in policy and practice both within the charter sector and in the larger landscape of public education

Organizing Schools for Improvement Anthony S. Bryk,Penny Bender Sebring,Elaine Allensworth,John Q. Easton,Stuart Luppescu,2010-03-15 In 1988 the Chicago public school system decentralized granting parents and communities significant resources and authority to reform their schools in dramatic ways To track the effects of this bold experiment the authors of Organizing Schools for Improvement collected a wealth of data on elementary schools in Chicago Over a seven year period they identified one hundred elementary schools that had substantially improved and one hundred that had not What did the successful schools do to accelerate student learning The authors of this illuminating book identify a comprehensive set of practices and conditions that were key factors for improvement including school leadership the professional capacity of the faculty and staff and a student centered learning climate In addition they analyze the impact of social dynamics including crime critically examining the inextricable link between schools and their communities Putting their data onto a more human scale they also chronicle the stories of two neighboring schools with very different trajectories The lessons gleaned from this groundbreaking study will be invaluable for anyone involved with urban education Cosmopolitanism and the Age of School Reform Thomas S. Popkewitz,2012-10-02 In Cosmopolitanism and the Age of School Reform noted educationalist Thomas Popkewitz explores turn of the century and contemporary pedagogical reforms while illuminating their complex relation to cosmopolitanism Popkewitz highlights how policies that include all children and leave no child behind are rooted in a philosophy of cosmopolitanism not just in salvation themes of human agency freedom and empowerment but also in the processes of abjection and the differentiation of the disadvantaged urban and child left behind as Other It's the Classroom, Stupid Kalman R. Hettelman,2010-01-16 This book presents a bold unconventional plan to rescue our nation s schoolchildren from a failing public education system The plan reflects the author s rare fusion of on the ground experience as school board member public administrator and political activist and exhaustive policy research The causes of failure Hettelman shows lie in obsolete ideas and false certainties that are ingrained in a trinity of dominant misbeliefs First that educators can be entrusted on their own to do what it takes to reform our schools Second that we need to retreat from the landmark federal No Child Left Behind Act and restore more local control And third that politics must be kept out of public education
