Encyclopaedia Britannica, 1797 The Gardeners Dictionary ... Abridged from the Last Folio Edition ... The Fourth Edition, Corrected and Enlarged Philip Miller, 1754 The Trauma of Making our Wedding Russell Green, 2024-05-24 Why is making a wedding such a trauma Well it brings together two families that just because their children have found love friendship and common ground who is to say that the rest of the families will have anything in common Every emotion is challenged and most of the families take sides over everything from the chair covers and napkin rings to the venue band and florist Now put together two families from different religions different backgrounds and very different financial positions but who live five minutes from each other and have crossed paths on many occasions throughout their early lives but maybe will never join the dots or maybe they will who knows And see what happens it's a chemical reaction that comes from making a wedding All this takes place whilst some of them have their own major personal dramas going on in their lives read how it changes them as individuals This story will send you on an emotional roller coaster from deep sadness to hilarious stubbornness to joy and laughter The impact that total strangers have on each other is sometimes life changing especially when it forces you to look in a mirror and take stock of what is really important in our own lives
