Following the Path from Teaching to Research University Gustavo Gregorutti, 2011-01-18 The 21st century has started out with universities adhering to a school of thought that has evolved to the point of believing in the metamorphosis of people and society through the creation of powerful inventions And society seems to expect that too Universities around the world are experiencing an increasing pressure to produce revolutionary ideas that can be translated into publications patents business and the like As a way of welcoming the third mission for universities elite winners of this tough game are gathering prestige visibility and all kind of human and financial assets Training and research the first and second missions are no longer enough universities are in a race for resources expressed in rankings that tend to model the whole higher education system But what about the small and middle size universities They are watching the game and want to be part of it This book is concerned with that group especially private higher education that is looking for ways to become visible and attract more resources Leadership at these institutions is becoming more entrepreneurial every day and following in the steps of highly research productive schools Changes like these do not come without resistance from among others faculty members who see these shifts as a threat to their traditional teaching mission In short this wave of producing inventions has put an incredible amount of stress on human resources and funding at smaller institutions The book illustrates the perceptions that professors have about the production of knowledge and their organizational environment This study seeks through a mixed method to unveil organizational and personal characteristics of faculty members most related to research productivity at 12 small to medium sized not for profit private doctorate granting universities in the United States of America As an additional contribution the author taps into alternative models of higher education the implications for which should be considered in broader society This is a scholarly work that is oriented to both policy makers and scholars of private universities that are evolving from a teaching oriented culture to a more research intense one Seeking Equal Opportunities and Safe Environments: Research from a Gender Perspective Alba García-Cid, Lourdes Villardon, Patricia García-Leiva, Raquel Diniz, Rosalia de Oliveira Lemos, Clarissa Pepe-Ferreira, Ana María Espinoza Catalán, 2025-02-07 Society's most important challenges require the best evidence to address the problems they entail. This is the main objective of the Research Topic Seeking Equal Opportunities and Safe Environments Research from a Gender Perspective. Considering that gender violence is a significant public health problem and social scourge affecting millions of individuals around the world, this issue aims to tackle all forms of gender-based violence, discrimination, and inequalities in order to foster safe environments for all people. High-level psychosocial, cultural, political, health, and educational research is needed to the pursuit of equal opportunities in the 21st century and very importantly to do so with a social impact that is reflected in an improvement of society. To meet the challenges in society and following The Sustainable Development Goals from the United Nations 2030 Agenda, research is sought inter alia on vulnerable populations who are specially affected by gender violence: children, adolescents, women, migrant groups, ethnic minorities, groups with special educational needs, LGBTIQ collective. This is intended to contribute to the objectives of Goal 4 Quality Education, Goal 5 Achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls, Goal 10 Reduce inequality, and Goal 16 Promote justice, peaceful and inclusive societies. With this in mind to carry out this important task, we are looking for research that provides evidence on the current global situation from a gender perspective and interventions that promote and support equality between men and women in a safe social context where violence and discrimination have no place. Research in Education, 1974 Resources Supporting Scientific Activities at Predominantly Black Colleges and Universities, 1982 Resources in Education, 1998 ICGR 2019 2nd International Conference on Gender Research. While much has been written regarding the lack of critical thinking, less has been written on the success of methods implemented to develop this fundamental skill. The Handbook of Research on Advancing Critical Thinking in Higher Education explores the effective methods and tools being used to integrate the development of critical thinking skills in both undergraduate and graduate studies. Due to the difficulties associated with teaching critical thinking skills to learners of any age, this publication is a crucial addition to the scholarly reference works available to pre-service and early career teachers, seasoned educational professionals, professors across disciplines, curriculum specialists, and educational administrators. University Research and Education Plan United States.
