Researching Race And Ethnicity Methods Knowledge And Power:

Researching 'Race' and Ethnicity Yasmin Gunaratnam, 2003-08-07 Gunaratnam's framework is rich in its examination and synthesis of approaches to the study of race. The reward for the reader who does pick up the book is that the author deftly articulates the complicated view of research on race first from the quantitative perspective and then skilfully moves the reader to issues of race in qualitative research. Studies in Ethnicity and Nationalism This is a welcome book for those engaged in policy and empirical work with an active research agenda. There is a level of theoretical sophistication in the text which is often missing from texts concerned with methods in this area. Race Relations Abstracts The particular value of this book to readers lies in the discussion of race, ethnicity and research issues within a political and social context. The author states her intention to explore some of the theoretical and practical dilemmas of researching race and ethnicity. This is without question achieved. I recommend it as essential reading for those concerned with increasing their awareness of issues relating to race, ethnicity and research practice. Nurse Researcher This is a thought provoking and challenging book which demonstrated the fractured and fluid nature of difference and power in the research process. Importantly it offers a guide to the ways in which research can be effectively and productively used in challenging the status quo. Diversity in Health and Social Care Researching Race and Ethnicity provides an innovative discussion of the methodological, epistemological and ethical challenges of doing qualitative research that is informed by questions of race, ethnicity and social difference. By identifying and challenging categorical thinking and many longstanding assumptions about the meanings of race and ethnicity, the author gets to the heart of many of the everyday dilemmas and difficulties that researchers confront in the field but are rarely theorised or openly discussed. Yasmin Gunaratnam's insistence that race and ethnicity are a significant part of all qualitative research and are not the specialist concerns of those whose work is explicitly focussed upon race provokes a radical rethinking of current methodological debates. How do racial and ethnic categories inform our approaches to research? How does the racialised identity of the researcher and the research participants affect the research interaction and the knowledge that we produce? What are the assumptions that are made about racialised subjectivity and intersubjectivity? How can we make sense of accounts in which race and ethnicity are silent or are non-manifest? How can we work ethically across difference? In examining these and other questions, the wide ranging discussions in the book are animated by examples drawn from the author's ethnographic research with white and minoritized research participants. Through these examples, readers will be able to engage with some of the complexities of research relationships, power relations and ethical concerns about engagement, disconnection and complicity in research. The attention that the book gives to the excluded experiences of minoritized researchers will be of particular value to many readers. Researching Race and Ethnicity is essential reading for students and academics in the social sciences.
